RUSH TO PROTECT DIPLOMATS AT ADDIS ABABA

EARLY OUTBREAK OF WAR FEARED

LEAGUE ACTION MAY HASTEN CRISIS

120,000 ITALIAN TROOPS READY FOR ACTION

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 22, 8 a.m.)

Cairo, July 21.

Foreign Powers with representatives at Addis Ababa are taking urgent steps to protect their diplomats in the event of an early outbreak of war.

The despatch of a million sandbags from Egypt for the use of the British Legation at Addis Ababa are among the measures taken to ensure the safety of Sir Sidney Barton, the British Consul-General to Ethiopia, and his staff.

It is the consensus of opinion in Egypt and the Sudan that war is inevitable and that it is only a question of when zero hour will be called.

It is thought that the fact that the League Council is meeting on July 29 to endeavour to prevent an outbreak of hostilities may actually result in hastening the clash. On the other hand, bad weather may render an early Italian offensive most difficult.

According to very reliable sources about 120,000 Italian troops have already passed through the Suez Canal and another 10,000 men are en route from Italy.

Reports that tens of thousands of Italian troops have already been evacuated from the Italian frontiers should be disregarded, Reuter learns. It is understood that the total of troops evacuated up to the present is only equal to the normal wastage due to the trying climatic conditions. —Reuter Special.

STALEMATE

London, July 21. The sharpness of the Anglo-Italian cleavage over Italy's demands for complete overlordship in Abyssinia has temporarily stalemated the diplomatic conversations between London, Paris and Rome, although efforts to secure a peaceful settlement have by no means been abandoned.

In the event that it becomes impossible to arrange a conference between French, Italian and British foreign ministers, it is understood that Britain is anxious to arrange a joint conference at Rome between Signor Mussolini and the British and French Ambassadors there. No basis for such talks has yet been found, however.

Britain insists that any settlement of the present dispute must be founded on the Kellogg Pact, whereas Italy is maintaining that only the 1906 Treaty between Italy, France and Britain bears upon the matter. —United Press.

PROVOCATIVE SPEECH

Rome, July 21. The Italian Government has instructed its Minister at Addis Ababa to protest strongly to the Ethiopian Government respecting the speech of Emperor Selassie delivered to the Parliament of the Ethiopians on July 18.

It is understood that Signor Mussolini has compared the official text with the newspaper versions and has found the official text highly provocative.

The protest is particularly aimed against Emperor Selassie's charge that Italy has been contemplating the invasion of Ethiopia for forty years. Italy claims that no troops were moved to Africa until the Unalul incidents, in which Abyssinians are alleged to have attacked Italian settlements.

Observers here declare the situation now even more dangerous. —United Press.

WONT SERVE

Athens, July 21. Greeks of military age are reported to be secretly leaving the Italian Islands in the Aegean Sea.

ITALY'S MISSION EXPLAINED

LEAGUE CHALLENGED BY MUSSOLINI

FAITH IN HIGH DESTINY

Paris, July 21.

"If Europe does not feel worthy of fulfilling her colonising mission in the world, then the hour of her decadence has irrevocably sounded," declared Signor Benito Mussolini, Italian Prime Minister, in an interview with the Rome representative of the Echo de Paris.

With regard to Abyssinia, the Duke likened himself to one of the British Empire builders or to one of the great French colonisers.

"Will the League of Nations become a tribunal before which negroes and savages and backward races of the world can arraign a great nation which has revolutionised and transformed humanity?" Signor Mussolini asked.

He declared Italy's decisive moment had come. He knew the difficulties, he said, but he was preparing for every contingency with the minutest care.

Next October, he asserted, there will be 1,000,000 Italians with the colours, and he would have nothing to fear.

"The Italian nation has made great efforts. It will occupy a great place in the world," he concluded. —Reuter.

RESULT OF MOTORING ACCIDENT

Springfield, July 20.

Tommy Barry, former national A.A.U. boxing champion, and Eddie Shea, an amateur boxer, were killed to-day when a car in which they were motoring crashed. Three companions also making the trip were injured. —United Press.

Increased Silver Price Favoured

WOULD NOT REALLY INJURE CHINA

MR. CROMWELL'S OPINIONS

Higher silver prices, not for the sake of silver itself, nor as a sop to the U.S. Silver States, are favoured by Mr. James H. R. Cromwell, described in some circles as "America's Financial Bolshevik," who is at present on a visit to the Colony, together with his wife, formerly Miss Doris Duke, sole heir to the Duke millions.

In the course of an interview with the Telegraph, Mr. Cromwell, who is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Sound Money League, stated that drastic and immediate financial reform is the only antidote to the impending world revolution. His method of securing the revival of world prosperity is to break the corner in gold and to undo the mischief wrought by gold "riggers" and hoarders, so that with a fall in the price of gold there would be a corresponding rise in the price of commodities.

Mr. Cromwell urges that the United States should buy silver and sell gold, the effect of which would be to turn the stampede of money hoarders from gold to silver. He suggests a "Gold Stabilisation Plan," which is not the same as bimetalism, symmetrical, fixed ratios, currency inflation or other silver utilisation proposals which have been put forward in the past.

STABILITY ASSURED

Under his plan, gold will continue to be the sole international monetary yardstick, but its price and purchasing power will be fixed or stabilised by the open market purchase and sale of both monetary metals. The purchasing power of gold, he says, can be stabilised solely by buying and selling it in exchange for the only other money commodity, namely, silver, and vice versa. A steady demand and supply market for the two metals will not only ensure a correct level of comparative values, but will likewise tend to maintain the stability of both.

Asked his views on the Roosevelt Administration's present silver policy, Mr. Cromwell said that this policy fixes the maximum price to be paid for silver at $1.29 per ounce. That is contrary to the purpose of the suggested Gold Stabilisation Plan, the object of which is to stabilise the value of gold, not of silver. Fixing a price or ratio for silver in terms of gold is, says Mr. Cromwell, altogether without justification.

THE CASE OF CHINA

Questioned as to his opinions on the possible harmful effects of higher silver prices on China, Mr. Cromwell said: —(Continued on Page 7.)

BRITISH OFFICER RELEASED

LIEUT. CHAMBERLAIN'S ADVENTURE

London, July 21.

It is understood that Lieutenant Joseph Chamberlain, son of Sir Austen Chamberlain, who was arrested by Wahabis when he crossed with a patrol from Akaba into Hedjaz territory, has now been ordered released.

It was feared that the release of Lieut. Chamberlain might be delayed owing to the frontier negotiations at present proceeding between the British authorities and King Ibn Saud.

It is explained that Lieut. Chamberlain inadvertently crossed the frontier on July 18 in an Army transport car and was arrested by the Saudi authorities. A searchlight car, sent to find Lieut. Chamberlain, was also detained. —Reuter.

HUNTING AIRWAY SHORT-CUTS

Wiley Post And Wife On Daring Voyage

(Special to "Telegraph")

Burbank, Cal., July 21. Following the announcement that three Soviet air-men would jointly attempt a flight from Moscow to San Francisco non-stop, by way of the North Pole, the well-known American Indian aviator Wiley Post announces an adventurous undertaking of the same sort.

He and his wife, he says, propose to start to-morrow on a flight across Alaska and Siberia to Moscow, to examine the possibilities of a short-cut air route over the top of the world. —Reuter Special.

THOUSAND PERISH

Tsinan, July 22. Chinese reports state that as a result of torrential rains and cloudbursts, the ensuing floods, thousands of persons have perished in and around Szechwan, Honan, near the Hupei border.

More than twenty villages have been wiped out and over sixty square miles of country is under water. —Reuter.

Halliburton Elephant Weakening

TIES UP TRAFFIC ON ALPINE PASS

Berne, July 21.

Mr. Richard Halliburton's trans-Alpine pilgrimage on the back of an elephant is causing much amusement to the mountain villagers and exasperation amongst the motorists who are held up behind him.

The novelist, who is endeavouring to capture something of the feeling which may have been experienced by the mighty Hannibal, is meeting with difficulties, just as the Carthaginian did. His elephant is tired and has to be coaxed along with lumps of sugar. Mr. Halliburton's expedition differs in this as well as other details from Hannibal's adventure. Hannibal used salt to split the rocks.

Furthermore, whereas Hannibal was marching to meet the Romans, Mr. Halliburton's enemies are behind him. They are motorists, held up by the slowly ambling pachyderm.

Over 600 spectators followed Mr. Halliburton's elephant up the last steep mile and a half to the summit of St. Bernard Pass. The animal was extremely tired after its long climb, and kept stopping. A great stream of motor traffic stretched behind, suiting its pace to the elephant's.

The elephant is finding the rarified air trying. Its condition necessitates frequent halts and rests. Out of consideration for it the party will probably spend the night some way down on the Italian side of the pass. —Reuter.

Character Cleared

LIONEL DA SILVA FREE OF CHARGE

Lionel da Silva, aged 23, accountant of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of China, Shell House, Hongkong, was this morning discharged at the Central Magistracy, without a stain on his character, when a charge of alleged embezzlement against him was withdrawn.

Silva had been arrested by virtue of a warrant on an accusation of embezzlement of $255.20—the money of his employers.

When the case came before Mr. Macfadyen this morning, Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for the defence, with Mr. W. K. Robinson for the prosecution.

Mr. Robinson made an application for withdrawal of the case, and Mr. M. A. da Silva stated that in fairness to his client, it should be mentioned that he was arrested by mistake.

In making his application for withdrawal of the charge, Mr. Robinson asked that accused be discharged without a stain on his character.

The Magistrate agreed, and the charge was accordingly withdrawn.

OTTAWA THREATENS REPRISALS

Ottawa, July 21.

The Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. R. B. Bennett to-day advised the Japanese Government that Canada considers the imposition of a fifty per cent. tax on Canadian goods is a violation of the equal treatment agreement which was guaranteed in the Anglo-Japanese agreement of 1911 and to which Canada became a party in 1913.

Mr. Bennett said that in the event of the surtax being imposed Canada will be forced to retaliate by imposing a surtax of 33 1/3 per cent. ad valorem on all Japanese imports.

STORM CAUSE OF AIR TRAGEDY

PLANE BEATEN DOWN IN ALPINE VALLEY

Geneva, July 21.

Inquiries have revealed that a violent Alpine storm was responsible for the loss of the lives of ten passengers and four of the crew of the big Dutch airliner which crashed when flying from Milan to Frankfurt-Am-Main yesterday.

According to the chief engineer of the Swiss Federal Aviation Department both engines of the machine, a Douglas monoplane, were in perfect order. No technical defect was to blame for the disaster.

The storm beat the machine down into a valley and the pilot appeared to be heading for a suitable landing-place. But the plane suddenly dived and crashed with terrible force among the trees.

The occupants were killed almost instantly. —Reuter.

BRITISH VICTIMS

Berne, July 21.

The Dutch airliner disaster is the third major air tragedy within a week.

The two British victims of this most recent crash were Mr. L. M. Neabitt, a mining engineer who had recently travelled extensively in Abyssinia, and Commander Arthur Watts, a London newspaper artist.

The other passengers, all of whom were killed, were Dutch, with the exception of one German. The crew consisted of pilot, mechanic, radio operator and hostess.

CAUSE UNCERTAIN

The cause of the mishap is uncertain and was possibly due to lightning or to the failure of one or both the engines.

The liner was only 300 feet up when it fell like a stone. It was smashed to pieces but did not catch fire.

Gen darmes are at present on guard at the scene of the disaster, for there is a large sum of money in the wreckage, in addition to mails. —Reuter Special.

BIG LIQUOR REVENUE

SAVING OF MILLIONS

Washington, July 21.

The repeal of prohibition throughout the United States, and the ending of the immense cost of enforcement which annually drained the country of some $100,000,000 and cost numbers of lives as well, has now commenced to pay dividends to the nation.

Nearly $500,000,000 annually is pouring into the Federal Treasury through the liquor trade, the Bureau of Internal Revenue reported to-day. This figure is for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The Bureau reported that beer and liquor drinkers contributed $311,021,772 in taxes. But there is another $25,000,000 collected in customs duties which is not taken into account here. The remainder of the revenue is made up in various ways, from sales taxes and licences, and so on. —United Press.

DYKES COLLAPSE

Shanghai, July 22.

Reports from Chengtu state that a large portion of the dykes of the Kialing River, in Szechuen, has collapsed due to the pressure of the surging waters, and heavy damage has resulted. —Reuter.

VATICANIMPROVEMENT IN RELATIONSSETBACK FOR MONARCHISTS

Madrid, June 26.

Reports of steady progress in the modus vivendi negotiations between Spain and the Vatican and the manifest improvement in the once strained relations between the young Republic and the Holy See were greeted with open satisfaction by Catholic Republicans and those Spanish Catholics who place the Church above the desire for a monarchical restoration.

To impartial observers, the friendly attitude being manifested by the Vatican towards the Republic indicates the Vatican's belief in the stability of the republican regime in Spain.

Although the Monarchists have persistently appealed to the religious instincts of the great mass of Spaniards by charging religious persecution and pointing to the Church and convent burning of May, 1931, shortly after the establishment of the new Regime, it is evident that the Vatican's seal of approval upon the Republic has proved an unexpected setback to the supporters of the former Monarchical regime.

To have the once outraged Holy See recognise the Republic's stability by negotiating a modus vivendi was unlooked for by the Royalists.

Although former Premier Manuel Azana once said that "Spain has ceased to be Catholic," the results of the November, 1933, elections, with the overwhelming victory for the Catholic Right-Wing indicated that the religious sentiments were still strong. The greatest obstacle the young Republic encountered in its 4-year career was the disturbed sentiments of a large mass of faithful Catholics, disturbed by the separation of the Church and State, the dissolution of Church orders and the confiscation of their assets, and the substitution of laic for religious teaching.

SENTIMENTS DISREGARDED

During the first two years of the Republic, the Left Wing governments persisted in disregarding the religious sentiments which gave rise to the powerful Right Wing reaction. The triumph of the Rights paved the way for smoothing out the relations with the Vatican. However, as long as there was no revision of Article 26 of the Constitution, a concordat was impossible so the Spanish Government sought the next best thing, a modus vivendi.

In charge of the negotiations since their initiation, is Leandro Pita Romero, a young Galician politician who proved himself an able diplomat.

Behind the negotiations on the Spanish side of the picture was the quiet figure of President Niceta Alcalá Zamora, an ardent Catholic, who believed the Republic was committing an error as long as it did not stabilise its relations with the Vatican. In recent meetings with the Cabinet, he reviewed his experience during the first three years of his 5-year mandate as President, and pointed out that the isolation of thousands of Spaniards by Article 26 of the Constitution would inevitably require its revision even though the Church and the State would have to continue separated.

This spiritual pacification, now underway in the negotiations, has had its repercussion in the Vatican's attitude toward the Spanish Royalists. Whereas an open air audience was scheduled for them in Vatican City on the occasion of the marriage of former Princess Beatrice to the Prince of Torlonia, the Pope limited himself to blessing them from behind a closed window. Inspired statements from the Vatican have criticised the Royalists for their zeal in working

TO LIGHT

Beaurevoir, France, June 14. New fact about Joan of Arc will be brought to light through excavations in and about the Chateau de Beaurevoir. The research work is being made under the direction of Mons. Jean Plateau, priest and archeologist, who is considered the greatest authority on that subject in France to-day.

One of his finds is a head in stone of a little girl with hair cropped short as it is believed that Joan wore hers. It is not established yet whether or not this is a long lost bust of the French heroine, but Plateau hopes to uncover much new material about the French saint.

Joan of Arc was imprisoned in this chateau in 1430 and in trying to escape she jumped from one of the towers. Her enemies trumped up the charge of "attempted suicide" which persuaded the judge against her although it was perfectly obvious that she had no intention of killing herself, but was merely trying to escape.

Plateau has delved 30 to 50 feet below the soil and has found the remains of three towers, part of a staircase, a vaulted roof, a portion of the drawbridge and remnants of the ramparts. When the research is finished, it is planned to reconstruct the Beaurevoir chateau as it was in 1430 and turn it into a Joan of Arc museum. It is hoped that this will be completed for the national holiday of Joan of Arc in 1936.—United Press.

CONTROL OF CRIMERESEARCH BY GRADUATESSCIENCE AND
THE HOMEBY TEG C. GRONDAHL
United Press Staff Correspondent

Berkeley, Calif., June 14. The scientist and the home must step in to control crime where police and the courts have failed. This was the conclusion recently announced by research agencies at the University of California in collaboration with the Bureau of Research and Guidance of the Berkeley school department.

After years of study the research agencies came to the conclusion that control of conditions which produce the gangster, the racketeer, the pervert and all other chronic criminal types, must be assumed by science and by the home.

The real cradles of crime, it was found, is the maladjusted home. That home, the scholars concluded, could be either in the slums or the suburbs.

The research revealed that chronic delinquency had not been checked or cured in the vast majority of cases where it had not been attacked in the home or in the school, and that social agencies set up for the control and punishment of the criminal may provoke as well as prevent crime.

Findings in possession of the bureau and the University prove decisively that unless criminal tendencies are checked at the start, there is little hope.

An early delinquent, it was reported, will "bog down" deeper into crime despite all restraint unless he is taken in hand when his destructive behaviour first becomes apparent.

An amazing sidelight on the problem which the bureau studied was that of supposedly non-delinquent children who later turned into criminal paths.

A concurrent study by Nathan Rodin, graduate student of the University, showed that 92.5 per cent of a group of Berkeley "problem" children in school some nine years ago have since become delinquents and criminals.

Lack of mentality is not always a factor, the studies revealed. The highly intelligent girl who is unduly restricted by parents or other adults, may develop into a vicious and puzzling criminal as the criminally inclined half-wit.

That the home holds the real solution of the crime problem was pointed out by the studies in emphasizing that the Berkeley school department has no record of a serious delinquency case developing from a normal and wholesome home.

On the other hand, the mal-adjusted home and improper and misguided adult restraint and adult misunderstanding breed virtually all delinquency and crime, the researchers said.

A study of three separate groups of children, 100 to a group, from all types of Berkeley public schools, revealed some interesting and challenging results.

One group was definitely delinquent, but this delinquency was checked or stopped to a marked degree by scientific treatment and home co-operation.

The second group, with like problems had been allowed to go unchecked. Virtually all showed increasing and serious delinquency as the study progressed.

The third group, with no apparent behaviour problems, developed a high percentage of delinquency within three years.

A fourth study, of 110, checked from records covering from five to 15 years, showed the high figure of 92 per cent developing into chronic criminals who had perpetrated everything from petty theft to homicide.

WINDERMERE A REAL CAMP

Striking while the iron is hot is a characteristic of the West that has gained the admiration of the rest of Canada. And so there is little surprise in the announcement that the Board of Trade at Inverness, B.C., has leased the bungalow camp at beautiful Lake Windermere for this summer, in anticipation of increased tourist traffic to the Canadian Rockies, which has been generally forecast in Europe, the Orient, and the United States.

The camp, which is being taken over by small but energetic Inverness, is one of the most delightfully situated in the Canadian Rockies. Built originally by the Canadian Pacific Railway, this camp has been successfully operated for the past several years as a private camp for girls. In the centre of an ideal vacation district, it is easily reached by main mountain highways. The famous Banff-Windermere road leads to it, a good alternative route being through the mountains from Cranbrook.

The lake averages about 68 degrees in the summer and is ideal for swimming and boating. Excellent trout fishing can be had in several creeks and smaller lakes near by and the lake itself has landlocked salmon of considerable size. Within a day's ride is the celebrated Lake of the Hanging Glaciers, with its spectacular glaciers all concentrating in one moraine with an ice wall several hundred feet high which drops a continual succession of small icebergs into the lake.

The camp is a particularly good centre for a whole summer's rest and exploration, because many of the side trips that can be made by car, mountain-bred ponies, or on foot to adjacent spots of beauty or historic interest. Tennis courts and motor launches are available for the use of the guests.

There is accommodation for 42 guests in the camp, which consists of a large main building, with wide verandah, and of separate small bungalows, equipped with single beds, stove, clothes closet, nice furniture, running water, and electric lights. A double bath-house, with hot and cold running water, contains separate bath rooms.

A colony of squeaking white rats in tiny cages demonstrated to the gathering of scientists a development of thymus gland extract, from the sweetbreads of calves, which speeds growth and maturity to an unprecedented degree. The extract is being tried on humans.

Nothing wrong with this dog's life. He's old, and can't walk far, so his mistress, at Margate, wheels him about when she's shopping.

ROCKEFELLER'S DAUGHTER

GOOD OLD DAYS RECALLED

Chicago, June 14.

The $4,000,000 mansion where Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick—known as "the richest woman in the world"—reigned as the arbiter of Chicago society and entertained queens and diplomats may be turned into a luxurious lunchroom.

Edward L. Brashers, appointed receiver for the property, has announced that the home of John D. Rockefeller's daughter, who died in 1932, is a "white elephant" and that, with all its onetime splendour, it's good for nothing more than a glorified eating place.

The home, encircled by a high, ornate iron fence, was the centre of the city's society for 35 years. Queen Marie was entertained there, as were the Prince of Wales and Crown Prince William of Sweden.

Dinner guests ate from the same service used by Napoleon and brought from the island of St. Helena by General Montholon, friend of the Emperor in the last days of his exile.

The furnishings, now gone with the auctioneer's hammer, were exquisite and costly. One rug alone, a rare old Persian that belonged to a Shah, cost $185,000.

The mansion, built a half century ago by the socially-minded Joseph P. Thatcher and citadel of lavish affairs during the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893, might not have reached its ignominious end if Mrs. Rockefeller had carried out plans which she announced seven years before her death.

She engaged architects to draw up plans for a million dollar museum on the spot, a grandiose castle-like affair housing objects d'art.

GENEROUS EFFORT

But her interest was sidetracked to a plan to develop great subdivisions of the less wealthy families might grow up amid flowers and trees. She organised the Edith Rockefeller Trust and into it went a large part of her $50,000,000 fortune.

The scheme collapsed when the depression set in in 1929 and the reigning queen of society, who had not spent a night away from her feudal home in 11 years, moved to a hotel suite. She said she had had heavy financial setbacks.

FOOD POISONING

CUTTLEFISH BELIEVED TO BE THE CAUSE

After finishing their evening meal on Friday last, three Chinese, Ng Lam-kee, Ng Yin and Ng Yiu, suddenly fell ill and were taken to the Kowloon Hospital where it was found they were suffering from food-poisoning.

According to one of the men, they bought a cuttlefish a few months ago, and on Friday they cooked some of it with the melon they usually eat with their meal.

It is believed the fish was responsible for their sudden illness.

The three men are reported to be recovering.

the old mansion was kept in momentary readiness for his return—even after his marriage and divorce from Ganna Walsma, the opera singer.

The home was referred to among society folk simply as "1880," its street number, and an invitation to a seven o'clock dinner there meant seven o'clock; if one arrived at 7.10 he missed soup—and perhaps the fish.

Now the home of society's queen—democracy was only a word to her—may become a beachside eating place with service at all hours.

experiments, reported that rats treated with the extract reproduced in one-eighth of normal time and lived longer than others of their species.

Rats in his cages have attained six days after birth the physical and mental development of other rats at the end of 72 days. Their eyes opened in 36 hours, contrasted with the normal period of 16 days and they reached maturity in four days.

The first generation of animals that Dr. Rowntree treated with the extract is 27 months old, equivalent to 75 years in human life. Rats normally live about 24 months.

Dr. Rowntree refused to comment on the possible effect of administration of thymus extract to his human "Guinea Pigs." The experiment has not progressed to a point where conclusions can be drawn, he said. He is being assisted in his work by Drs. Jefferson H. Clark and Arthur Steinberg, Philadelphia, and A. M. Hanson, Fairbault, Minn.

Dr. Martin G. Vorhaus of New York reported successful treatment of 92 of 100 neuritis sufferers by oral administration of a newly isolated crystalline form of vitamin B-1 the "nerve" vitamin. The crystal is so potent that a granule, the size of a pinhead, is equal in vitamin content to 100 cakes of yeast.

The cancer preventive, developed by Dr. J. R. Davidson of Winnipeg, Canada, is a highly concentrated diet of vitamin E, found particularly in the wheat germ.

Dr. Davidson applied a cancer irritant to 12 white mice. Six of the rodents were fed a diet high in vitamin E, the other six normally. All of the six on normal diet contracted cancer and died. None of the others was affected.—United Press.

NEW POLICE CHIEF

HELLDORF IS APPOINTED BY GOEBBELS

London, July 20.

Light on the appointment of Herr Helledorf as Police President of Berlin is shed by the Berlin correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, who says that there was a conference at Helligedamm, when Dr. Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, was staying, after which Herr Helledorf was appointed.

The appointment has the appearance of a coup within the Nazi Party by the Radical wing, who dislike capitalist Ministers like Dr. Schacht. It is understood that Herr Lovetow resigned because he disapproved of the anti-Semitic demonstrations organised by the Radicals.

However, Herr Helledorf's appointment requires Reichsfuehrer Hitler's endorsement, which it may not receive, as neither General Goering nor other leaders were previously informed. Herr Himmler, one of the most important military Nazi leaders, who likewise was not informed of the impending change, has flown from Bavaria in order to consult Herr Hitler about Herr Helledorf's appointment.

All police leave has been stopped in Berlin, and the general opinion is that there are dangerous days ahead for Germany.—Reuter.

Jews and Catholics

Herr Gurtner, the Minister for Justice has issued a decree instructing all state prosecutors to proceed with the utmost rigour against "political Catholicism." The Chief of Police has ordered Jewish lecture parlours to close early to prevent demonstrations.—United Press.

JAPAN DENIES RUSSIAN ALLEGATIONS

Tokyo, July 20.
Replying to the recent Soviet protests against the alleged crossings of the frontier by Japanese troops from Manchukuo and Manchukuo gunboats along the Amur River, Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, declared that the charges were without foundation.

He said: "The Japanese Government finds it difficult to comprehend the real motives of the Soviet Government in directing unwarranted abuse against the Japanese authorities in Manchukuo, and more-over apparently seeking to attract wide attention by giving sensational publicity to exaggerated misinformation concerning events."

"In the interests of friendly relations the Japanese Government deeply regrets the attitude of the Soviet Government."—Reuter.

Japanese Version
Tokyo, July 21.
The Foreign Office replying to Soviet's sharp note of July 1 denied that the Japanese troops over crossed the Soviet frontier.

Regarding the charge that Japanese patrols killed a Russian soldier, the note states that this occurred after the Soviet patrols had crossed the Manchukuo border and opened fire. Therefore as the Soviet troops had crossed the frontier it was they who were responsible for the man's death.—United Press.

Japan's Ultimatum

Dairen, July 20.
A virtual ultimatum has been served upon Outer Mongolia by the Kwantung Army, which declares that it will wholeheartedly support Manchukuo's contention to oust the Outer Mongol border troops near Tamakusumu should the Outer Mongols decline to second the proposal for an exchange of delegates for the settling of border difficulties.—Reuter.

GREEK CABINET

TSALDARIS FORMS A NEW GOVERNMENT

Athens, July 20.
Mr. Tsaldaris has formed a new Cabinet retaining the former Prime Minister, General Kondylis, as Vice-President and Minister for War.—United Press.

Ex-Premier Collaborates
Athens, July 20.
After conversations this evening between Mr. Tsaldaris the Premier, and General Kondylis, the War Minister, it seems certain that the latter will collaborate with the Government, consequently instead of a collective resignation of the Cabinet there will merely be a reshuffling.—Reuter.

Minister of War
Athens, July 20.
After a lengthy meeting, re-organisation of the Cabinet was completed with Mr. Tsaldaris as Premier, General Kondylis as Vice-Premier and Minister for War, and Mr. Maximos as Foreign Minister.

The retention of General Kondylis in the Cabinet is regarded as a victory for the Royalists, making the prospects of a restoration of the monarchy more likely.—Reuter.

The Premier and Minister for War are now in the same positions that they held when the Cabinet was reconstructed in March, 1935, after the February rebellion. It is a Popular Party Cabinet.

EDDYSTONE KILODYNE

FOR BATTERY OPERATION.

The EDDYSTONE 1935 Kilodyne is primarily a Short Wave Receiver and afterwards adapted for use on broadcast, unlike many sets in which the procedure is reversed and the short wave performance only a secondary consideration.

Prominent features of design are ease of operation, complete freedom from body capacity effects even on the shortest waves, no dead spots on any waveband and smooth and definite reaction everywhere. Economy of current consumption, and the fact that all parts are suitable for use under tropical conditions are points which will appeal to the overseas user. Four efficient valve stages give the set exceedingly long distance capabilities with freedom from interstage noise, outside static and electrical interference, which is most pronounced when the KILODYNE is compared with sets using a large number of valve stages, each of individually lower efficiency.

ROBBERY IN CITY

HAUL OF JEWELLERY AND MONEY MADE

A clever ruse was employed by thieves who robbed a woman of several hundred dollars worth of money and jewellery and, after threatening the inmates of a floor, decamped.

A report of the affair has been made to the Police by Lo Wan-fong, a married woman residing at 52, Wellington Street, second floor. She states that about 12.30 p.m. on Thursday a Chinese male visited her and rented a cubicle for $30, paying a deposit of $2 in advance. At 3 p.m. the same day some furniture was brought to the floor by two males and a Chinese woman occupied the cubicle.

A little after 3 a.m. on Friday, four or five men entered the floor. They bound up the inmates while they remained there for about half-an-hour, decamped with money to the total value of $564 and also several articles of jewellery. Before leaving the robbers threatened to kill the inmates if a report of the affair was made to the Police. The woman who occupied the cubicle left with the robbers.

Fearing for their lives, the inmates did not pluck up enough courage to make a report to the Police until some time had elapsed after the robbers' departure.

PICKED JAK FRUIT

TWO CHINESE YOUTHS IN POLICE COURT

Damage to a jak fruit tree in the Botanical Gardens on Thursday night led to the appearance of two youths, Cheung Wing-san, cur cleaner, and Wai Kichung, assistant cook, both of 52 Robinson Road, before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistrate's Court on Saturday.

Mr. J. R. Carr, Supervisor of the Botanical and Forestry Department, prosecuted, while Mr. C. D. R. Sanders, for the defence, pleaded guilty. It was stated that the first defendant climbed the tree while the second man remained on the ground. Four jak fruits were dislodged from the tree.

The magistrate found both defendants over, and ordered each to pay $5 compensation to the Government. Detective-Sergeant Guild was present for the Police.

SERIOUS CHARGE

BRITISH SOLDIERS IN POLICE CUSTODY

Cyril William Crompton and George Chapman, two privates of "C" Company, 1st Battalion the Lincolnshire Regiment, stationed at Shamshulpo camp, were brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court on Saturday and were charged with the manslaughter of Halder Khan, an ex-police guard attached to the No. 7 Police Station. They were formally remanded for seven days.

Detective-Inspector A. J. W. Dorling, who appeared for the prosecution, stated that the original charge against first accused was one of common assault, but as the result of further developments he wished to withdraw that and preferred a charge of manslaughter against the two men. It was alleged that the two accused did unlawfully kill one Halder Khan at Shanghai Street on Friday.

When Inspector Dorling made an application for one week's formal remand in custody, Second-Lieut. P. G. Wornell, of the Lincolnshire Regiment, informed His Worship that he had been in telephonic communication with the Commanding Officer who had asked that an application be made for the return of the accused to military custody, as he did not want the two men, who were wearing the King's uniform, to be kept in gaol.

The Commanding Officer had communicated with the Headquarters of the China Command and they are also of the same opinion.

Police Oppose Application

Inspector Dorling opposed the application, stating that he had been instructed to ask for gaol custody. He also stated that it could be arranged that civilian clothing be obtained for the use of the accused while in custody.

At this stage the Magistrate requested the officer to communicate with the Commanding Officer and explain the situation to him, and ask him for any other reason against the men's detention in gaol.

The officer did so, and on his return said: "The Commanding Officer has no objection to how to your Worship's decision; he has no other reason for the men's being kept in gaol, except that they have already been in custody other than has already been stated. He makes the request that during the men's stay in gaol, it be arranged that they wear civilian clothing, not uniform."

On remanding the accused His Worship provisionally fixed the adjournment of July 29 and 30 for hearing of the case.

It is understood that Halder Khan had recently been pensioned and was to have sailed for India on Saturday.

SURVEY FLIGHT

JAPANESE AIRMAN OFF TO-MORROW

Mr. Katsutaro Aho, the Japanese airman, who arrived here on Friday morning from Fort Bayard, will continue his survey flight on behalf of the Japanese Government to-morrow, when he will fly to Shanghai direct.

Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Aho said he would, weather permitting, leave Kai Tak early to-morrow morning and fly direct to Shanghai instead of Taihoku, Formosa, as originally intended. From Shanghai, he will go to Osaka and then to Tokyo. On arrival at the capital, he will submit a report of his trip to the Japanese Government on the proposed establishment of an air line between Japan and Europe.

His plane is at present being overhauled at Kai Tak, and the repairs to the wing and undercarriage, which were slightly damaged when the machine struck and killed a native woman at Fort Bayard, just as it landed, have now been effected.

Series of Mishaps

Mr. Aho's trip has been interrupted by a series of mishaps, the first of which occurred on the day he took off from London, May 11, when he crashed at Brussels and was delayed some days. His next mishap was near Rangoon where he was held up for fifty days following another crash which necessitated his sending to London for special parts for his machine.

Mr. Aho left Hanoi at 10.30 a.m. on Thursday, July 18 for Hongkong. A large number of the local Japanese community, including the Consul-General, Mr. Midogawa, awaited his arrival at Kai Tak on the afternoon of that day, but unfortunately, he failed to turn up. This delay, Mr. Aho explained, was due to the fact that after he had started from Hanoi he encountered strong head winds and his machine developed engine trouble. He was forced to land at Fort Bayard where he met with the accident already mentioned. The plane was slightly damaged and after temporary repairs had been effected, he left Fort Bayard at 8.30 a.m. on Friday for Hongkong where he arrived some three hours later.

ASSAULTED HIS WIFE

GRAVE ALLEGATIONS MADE AGAINST A COOLIE

Believing his 22-year old wife, Li Wan, to be unfaithful to him, Lam Yau, a coolie, residing at No. 17 Electric Street, second floor, tied her wrists together, and beat her about her legs and body and then proceeded to cut her face. He was arrested through information lodged by the principal tenant.

Appearing before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistrate's Court on Saturday, he was remanded for a week in Police custody, and ordered to be medically examined, as Detective Sergeant Fitches, prosecuting, said he appeared to be insane.

The charge against the defendant was one of assaulting his wife, Li Wan, on the second floor of No. 17 Electric Street, on July 17. Sergeant Fitches said that for the past two or three months, the complainant had been visited by a clansman of hers, aged 18 years, and she

PEPPER POOL

REMOVALS OF HEAVY DUTY ON IMPORTS

London, July 20. Rumours are current in the City that the Government will be asked to impose a heavy import duty on pepper, thus enabling the Pepper Pool, which took up 20,000 tons during the pepper and shellac troubles, to dispose of its holdings. It is understood that the stock of the pool is at present 18,000 tons.

The new crop of pepper is now selling unofficially for 42s. per pound, compared to 3d. at which price the pool took over the stock. It is considered most unlikely that the Government will take action. It is pointed out that pepper is now most difficult to sell in London, which will probably result in new supplies being shipped elsewhere.

Many believe that the current unremunerative prices will lead producers to ask the Government of the Netherlands East Indies to impose some form of restriction, as a sharp reduction in the output would enable the Pool's holdings to be liquidated more quickly, thus securing a more remunerative price possible.

PARITY IN ARMAMENTS

"The reason why limitation, disarmament or agreement in the air is vital is because of the swiftness of the stroke from the air." What we have to stop is that race in arms which can only end in bankruptcy and may end in war." Thus spoke Mr. Baldwin at a mass meeting held at the Albert Hall recently. In these words, he put his finger on the central point of the arms danger, and he also provided grounds for the contention that the British Government should take the initiative with a view to getting an agreement to end the arms race and to ensure parity at as low a figure as possible. In the same speech, Mr. Baldwin remarked that if there is to be collective security, common sense, common honesty, and common fairness demands that all should put an equal amount into the pool. That is a statement which should find general acceptance. But in a system of collective security, surely the measure of the equal contribution should be collectively determined. There cannot be any ground for each nation maintaining armaments at the same high level which it would seek if it were the single defender of its own security. It was on this ground that there was recently some criticism of the British decision to fix air parity at the French level, the critics asking why we should go up instead of down? Certainly it can be argued that if parity at the level of 1,500 planes will give security, so will parity at the level of 1,000 or 500 planes. And common sense suggests that, if agreement can be reached, parity at a low level is to be preferred to parity at a high level. If all the Great Powers stand for peace, as they declare, there ought really to be no question of a race in armaments. A system of collective security does not require high or increasing armaments, and the thought suggests itself that if nations can trust one another not to exceed a common figure based on a high level, they ought to be able to trust one another to abide loyally by an agreement fixing their strength at a lower figure. It is not to be doubted that Britain is anxious for a world armament agreement, and that she has with the greatest reluctance felt compelled to treble her Air Force. Had there been any prospect of

NOTES OF THE DAY

STRAIGHT TARIFF

The heart of the British farmer has been cheered by the clear and unqualified declaration of tariff policy which Mr. J. H. Thomas made in his survey of Dominion relations, says the Daily Mail. He stated what Mr. Baldwin announced in less definite terms some months ago, that "instead of a system of restrictions and embargoes, which leads to all manner of friction . . . the policy at which we are aiming and the agreement which we are striving to obtain is a tariff with a substantial preference to the Dominions." We welcome that statement the more because, as our readers well know, for years the Daily Mail has called for a policy of straight tariffs of the kind suggested by Mr. Thomas, with ample preference to the Dominions, in place of the present confused complex of quotas, restrictions, levies, subsidies, and marketing boards. The straight tariff alone can straighten out the awkward tangle of the milk and beef and bacon schemes, and thus secure the solvency and stability of British agriculture.

DELAY UNAVOIDABLE

There must, unfortunately, be delay before the new policy can be applied energetically. The Argentine agreement prohibits further taxation of Argentine meat imports until November of next year, and the Danish agreement prevents limitation of Danish bacon imports till June, 1936. But when the straight tariff is put into effect, let the Government make sure that there is no nonsense about it—that it is sufficiently high to give our farmers efficient protection and the Dominions generous preferences. The Empire must come before foreign interests. It offers an expanding market for our exports, whereas the foreign market is stationary or contracting. The first principle in framing the tariff must be to encourage to the utmost British agriculture to grow more food at home, and thus at once to provide healthy employment for British labour and insurance against the risk of starvation in war. One of the earliest measures of Mr. Baldwin's new Government should be, in accordance with this policy, of guarantee the continuance of the beet subsidy, since official experts have declared the growth of that crop to be "essential to intensive cultivation."

ACCEPTABLE THEORY

If, as the Daily Mail believes, the heart of the "home" farmer has been cheered by Mr. Thomas' definition of the tariff policy, it is altogether likely that there will be an equally happy reaction in the Dominions. Unquestionably they have benefited, and will benefit still further, from Great Britain's preferential treatment of their raw products. Their wheat and meat, minerals and fruits, and all the countless products that go to make their revenue in pounds sterling are of their surest sources of prosperity, and are gaining a more and more important place in the markets of the United Kingdom. The theory of preference in tariffs is most acceptable to these Dominions, obviously. At the same time the United Kingdom cannot afford to relinquish its prestige in other than Empire markets for the sake of the Dominion producer. Britain's customers are scattered all over the globe. Not for a moment do we wish to discount the advantages of a solid system of Empire barrier, adequately protected, but at the same time it would be a serious loss to the British manufacturer if, in pursuit of a leak-proof Empire preference scheme, the great industries were to sacrifice their still substantial trade in all other than spheres of British control. Empire trade should be encouraged to the very limit, and if the British industrialist were not faced, with serious competition from foreign producers in the Dominions themselves, and even in Britain, we would be more ready to accept the "Empire first" policy championed by the Daily Mail.

an immediate understanding embracing all the principal Powers, the high parity would not have been decided upon. It is the absence of that prospect which has necessitated prompt action, in view of the danger of a swift threat from the air, to which Mr. Baldwin recently alluded. On general principles, however, Britain stands by her desire for world disarmament, and what- ever else may be said about the recently-concluded naval agreement with Germany, there is good reason to believe that the Government regarded it as a step towards the end in view.

MUSSOLINI AND ABYSSINIA

By G. WARD PRICE

LAST April the British Government took part in a League of Nations vote of censure on Germany for rearming.

Now, only two months later, the same Government has negotiated a naval agreement which settles how Germany is to do it.

League resolutions leave unaltered the necessity for facing facts.

Next August another choice between fact and theory will have to be made.

Mr. Anthony Eden, the newly appointed British Cabinet Minister for League Affairs, has already played a prominent part in the efforts of that body to interfere with Italian policy towards Abyssinia.

If these efforts are renewed when the present period of "arbitration" ends in foredoomed failure, Italy will leave the League, as Japan left it in consequence of similar attempts to obstruct her in Manchukuo.

Highly disciplined and energetically led nations like the Japanese, Germans, and Italians will not permit third parties to meddle with their vital patriotic aims, any more than this country would have allowed it when she was building up her own Empire. It is not yet forty years since war between Britain and France was only averted by the withdrawal of the French expedition which had occupied Fashoda, on the Upper Nile, and so threatened to interfere with our occupation of the Sudan.

Italian feeling with regard to Abyssinia is as little appreciated in this country as our attitude in the Fashoda affair was understood on the Continent.

I have had better opportunities than most people of becoming acquainted with it. In Rome recently I had an hour's private conversation with Signor Mussolini which mainly dealt with the Abyssinian question. Similar talks in each of the thirteen years since he came to power have convinced me of the sincerity and frankness with which he speaks on such occasions.

Italy has two aims in East Africa, to which many counterparts can be found in our own history. The first is to protect what she has got; the second is to secure new territory for over-seas settlement.

Eritrea and Somaliland may appear to us insignificant possessions, but they make up one half of Italy's Colonial Empire. They are narrow strips of territory, 3,000 miles from Italian ports, and each of them with a long and vulnerable land frontier bordering on the most powerful and warlike country in Africa, which can put into the field 500,000 well-armed men.

If war were to break out in Europe, those little Italian Colonies

would be cut off. Italy could send them no reinforcements or supplies, for the Mediterranean would be closed by enemy submarines. What more likely than that the Abyssinian tribesmen, who for years have been raiding on the frontier, would take the opportunity to swoop down upon the isolated Italian garrisons? And what greater ignominy for the Fascist regime than to lose Colonies founded by the democratic Government which it displaced?

Mussolini's immediate aim, therefore, is to put Eritrea and Italian Somaliland in a position to look after themselves, without support from home. For this purpose an army of 100,000 white troops and 200,000 native auxiliaries is being created there, with arrangements for their supplies to be drawn from sources beyond the Red Sea.

That is the first of Italy's aims in East Africa. The second is to secure ultimately for Italian settlement some of the lofty Abyssinian plateau with its bracing, temperate climate and fertile soil. Italy, whose area is about half the size of France, has 2,000,000 more inhabitants. Only by hard work and a low standard of living can the Italian people exist in its cramped confines. Emigration is stopped by foreign restrictions. The territory in Asia Minor promised by the Allies during the war was never conquered. It is natural, therefore, that Italy should look for new outlets in Abyssinia, a country so backward and brutal that the British Government fourteen years ago protested against its admission to the League of Nations.

As far back as 1906 Britain, France, and Italy came to an agreement which contemplated the partition of Abyssinia between them into spheres of influence. Almost at the same time Britain and France made a similar arrangement by which Britain, in return for a free hand in Egypt, recognised the right of the French Government to penetrate Morocco. What France did in Morocco Italy now wants to do in Abyssinia.

These Italian ambitions in Abyssinia do not clash with any interests of ours or of the French. On the contrary, the unruly chieftains of the Abyssinian frontier-districts may some day become as aggressive against us in the Sudan as they have shown themselves to the Italians in Somaliland. By close on thirteen years of brilliant administration Mussolini has given proofs of the benefits that his rule would bring to Abyssinia. The genius of the Head of the Italian Government, which has transformed his own country, deserves a wider field. By opposing its extension to one of the last and most backward of independent native States we should be hindering the progress of civilisation.

"Now that they've all graduated and become engineers and lawyers, I wonder if I shouldn't have kept them home and taught them my trade."

The Very Idea!

NEW POLICE FORCE Insidious Propaganda Is

Having Its Effect

By Supt. Edward Kelly

MR. Kelly, who has been reading all the correspondence in a morning contemporary regarding film censorship, agrees with the correspondent who says that there is not enough censoring in Hongkong.

The dreadful influence of certain types of films on children is already well known, Mr. Kelly avers. But what, he asks, of the influence of another and more insidious type of film on the adult population?

"Bring our censors to their senses!" is Mr. Kelly's motto.

A pernicious American system of propaganda threatens to rock our Police Force to its very foundation.

And when you rock a police force to its foundation, it's no mean feat.

We refer, of course, to the number of pictures that have been screened lately, depicting the work of the American police forces—forces.

This insidious propaganda is already having its effect.

Since "Manhattan Melodrama" was screened a movement has been started in Hongkong to Americanise the Colony's Force.

Any day now the riot-squad will be equipped with sirens, while dashboard radio sets will whisper, in the modulated voices employed by all Hongkong police sergeants, the magic words, "Calling all Cars!"

We went up to Police Headquarters yesterday to interview Mr. Burlingham on the subject, but he was too busy counting the cigars and bowler hats that will be issued to Americanised Hongkong plain clothes detectives to see us.

However, with our usual imagination, we can depict for our public the incidents that will occur in the life of a young Hongkong policeman when the new scheme comes into operation.

There will, of course, have to be the periodical raids on the dreadful speakeries and night clubs that infest this fair Colony.

We foresee the European Y.M.C.A. and Women's International Club as the first joints to be raided. In the case of the former, a dozen screaming police cars will tear down Salisbury Road. Axes will be employed by the police to gain admittance to the Y.M.C.A., and the residents will be suddenly surprised with the evidence of guilt in front of them. The bottles of Formazone, the draughts and the chess-boards and ping-pong tables will be taken by the police as exhibits.

Mr. Ingram will probably barricade himself in his office with the other Y.M.C.A. gangsters and shoot it out with the raiders.

Radio listeners, by tuning in to the police station's wave-length, will hear juicy flashes of information. Such as—

"Calling all Cars! Calling all Cars! Public Enemy No. 1 just entered the Dairy Farm speakery in Queen's Road. Bring him in!" Then, of course, the cars will tear down Queen's Road and will rush in and arrest us, just as we were gulping down the last of our Chocolate Malted Milk.

"Stick 'em up, Kelly!" the sergeant will say.

"Say, bo, we'll reply. 'You ain't got a thing on us. We've got an alibi.'"

"Give him the works, Joe," one of the dicks will say.

After they have given us the works then we rejoin their cars and wait for the next message.

"Calling all cars! Calling all cars! (We're beginning to like this!)" the loud speaker will exclaim, "A woman is being murdered on the second floor of the Gloucester."

So the cars will proceed to the Gloucester, and the Johns will use their axes again to break down the door of ZBW's studio. Accidents like that are always liable to happen, however, especially with some of our Hongkong singers.

Naturally, Mr. Burlingham will have to see that ROMANCE is introduced into the Hongkong police force. Perhaps arrangements can be made for some of the Peak lovelies to co-operate in this matter.

All that is necessary is for them to be arrested and put in Victoria Gaol—that is, penitentiary, on a murder charge. The Sergeant-who-fell-in-love-with-her-when-he-arrested-her-but-always-believed-in-her-innocence will move heaven-or-earth to find the guilty person, who will be discovered just as the

WEEK-END

Washington, July 20. President Roosevelt is aboard the Government yacht Sequoia today on a week-end cruise down to Chesapeake Bay. He plans to return to Washington late on Sunday.

The President and a small party motored to Annapolis, Maryland, last night to board the yacht. The week-end cruise, it was indicated, will be devoid of political conferences, but if Mr. Roosevelt desires to discuss the legal aspects of the New Deal, now under attack in courts throughout the country, the Attorney General, Mr. Homer S. Cummings, will be included in the party.—United Press.

FOOTPADSCOXSAIN ROBBED OF MONEY

Whilst walking along Causeway Bay Road near the naval football ground at 4.30 a.m. today, Lau Fook, aged 57, coxswain of the motor boat Kwong Sang, was waylaid by three men and robbed of $144 in money.

In his report to the police, the victim of the robbery stated that he left his motorboat in Gordon Road, Bay View, this morning and proceeded via Causeway Bay Road to Yau Ma Tei. Near the football ground, three men stopped him and took the money from him. They then fled towards Tung Lo Wan Road.

No arrests have yet been made.

U.S. NAVY OFFICER'S

Washington, July 20. The State Department has announced that, according to reports from Mr. William H. Dodd, U.S. Ambassador to Germany, no American midshipman was arrested or fined in connection with the anti-Jewish demonstrations in Berlin last Monday.

This is a denial of a report which was circulated, but the United Press did not carry any such reports.—United Press.

The Hongkong dollar was unchanged this morning. Business rates were about 2s. 1s. 5/8d. Sellers and 2s. 1s. 11/16d. buyers. The market is very quiet, with little business passing.

In London, spot silver was unchanged on Saturday, but the forward rate was down 1/16th. India and China sold, while America bought, the market being steady. New York silver prices were unchanged.

GOOSE STOLEN

LOCAL SOLICITOR
VICTIMISED

Appearing before Mr. S. Balfour at the Central Magistrate's court this morning on a charge of stealing a goose, Au Wing-sheung, 35, unemployed, was sentenced to a month's hard labour.

It was stated that the goose belonged to Mr. G. K. Hall-Bruton, of No. 4 Po Shan Road. Defendant was seen yesterday afternoon by a man delivering oil to the house to take the goose and run away. He was chased and arrested in Bonham Road.

REDS ROUTED?

Shanghai, July 22. It is stated in reports from Chungking, that Government troops have recaptured Weichow, 100 miles north-west of Chengtu, and that the Red leader Hsu Tsung-chien has been severely wounded.—Reuter.

TWO TYPHOONS

The Manila Observatory, reporting at 9.40 a.m. to-day, states that there is a typhoon in about 124 Long, 26 Lat., moving N.N.W., and another in about 145 Long, 10 Lat., moving W.N.W.

INCREASED SILVER

Cromwell said:—"The question of whether our silver purchasing plan will hurt or help China seems to be of more importance to some Americans than the question of the economic survival of their own country. Commodity prices in China will," he said, "fall in ratio to the internal rise of silver, but it is difficult to see how this will seriously affect the living standards of more than one out of a hundred Chinese. The fact that our hidden savings may be doubled or trebled will not bring suffering to the average Chinese."

Referring to foreign capitalists in Shanghai against high silver prices, Mr. Cromwell said:—"If the world is to gain the benefits of the great increase of trade and commerce guaranteed by a stable international monetary yardstick, those nations or persons who have temporarily profited through depreciated money must go through the pains of readjustment in order to participate in the more lasting good. This is inevitable, and there is no way to avoid it."

Mr. Cromwell added that he did not desire at the moment to comment further on Chinese objections to higher silver prices, but he hoped when in Nanking to discuss the matter with leading members of the Chinese Government.

SOUND MONEY LEAGUE

Regarding the Sound Money League, Mr. Cromwell stated that this is a non-partisan organisation which proposes to hasten the end of the present depression, to relieve unemployment, to restore values and to fight both inflation and deflation. The League demands that Congress exercise its constitutional duty to issue and regulate the value of money, a duty heretofore left to the discretion of the privately-owned Federal Reserve System.

"To ensure these ends," said Mr. Cromwell, "the League urges that Congress shall create a Central Bank, owned by the Government, but politically independent, which by legislative mandate shall issue and maintain a supply of money sufficient to guarantee full employment at an equitable wage and price level."

"This can be accomplished by the Central Bank issuing, through routine Government expenditures, an amount of new money each year equal to the increase in the production of our nation's finished goods. So long as private banks increase production by creating new money and are then stopped by gold insufficiency from furnishing the additional money required to purchase the new production thus created, just so long must our modern economy endure these man-made cycles of prosperity and depression."

"The Sound Money League," said Mr. Cromwell, "is opposed to the Central Bank competing with private or commercial banks, which should continue to render to the nation their indispensable services of exchanging the people's cheques and cashing and loaning their savings."

Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell are at present staying at the Repulse Bay Hotel, and both are greatly delighted with the beauties of Hongkong, which, they say, is the most attractive centre they have yet visited in the course of their extended honeymoon tour. They plan to leave for Canton on Wednesday, and to fly from there to Shanghai, later visiting Peking.

On Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell were entertained informally to a Chinese dinner at the Roof Garden of the Hongkong Hotel by the United Press. Those present, in addition to the guests of honour, were Mr. Harold Guard, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Biggar, Miss Mary Knight, and Mrs. Mary Wong, daughter of Sir Robert Ho Tung.

beautiful Peak lovely is being taken to the electric chair.

After a fight with the criminal, during which all the furniture was broken (this can be charged to the Government), the murderer will be dragged to prison just in time to confess and save the girl.

At the subsequent wedding, all the Hongkong police officers will join around the happy couple, and cheer when the I.G.P., with tears in his eyes, pins a D.I.G.P. badge on the bridegroom's breast.

And if the traffic sergeant who took the number of our car last night doesn't forget to report the incident to headquarters we've written all this in vain.

LAHORE RIOTS

ROYAL SCOTS COMPELLED TO OPEN FIRE

Lahore, July 20.

Two people were killed and several injured when the Royal Scots were compelled to fire four rounds into a crowd of 2,000 Muslims who in defiance of the curfew order camped in the streets all night and attempted in the morning to reach the Shahd Guna Mosque, attacking the police cordons barring the progress of their processions.

The Muslims, maddened by religious fervour, by a week's dissonance with the Sikhs over the latter's demolition of an old mosque, are now resorting to passive resistance and refuse to disperse, despite the arrest of 300 of their number.

Air Force planes are at present circling over the town and troops are standing by.

Altogether ten were killed and many injured in the riots, the whole area being strewn with bricks and stones with which the mob kept up a barrage. Fifty police including five British were injured, while a cavalryman was thrown off his horse and killed.

The crowds have not been overawed by the shooting and their attitude is still menacing. The position is regarded as being serious and British troops have been drafted over the whole city, and posted at strategic points. Armoured cars are patrolling the streets.—Reuter.

Two Rioters Killed

Lahore, July 21. The Muslim crowd, which was held up by barbed wire entanglements, did not disperse during the night and increased in numbers as morning approached.

Later they became violent and stoned the military who fired six rounds after warning the crowd.

However, the crowd continued defiant and the stone throwing went on. Then the Royal Scots again fired a further two rounds and two persons are believed to have been killed.

The situation continues to be serious, and more British troops are being drafted to Lahore, the Punjab Light Horse and Sixth Lancers being called out and also a unit of the sixth Armoured Car Company. The public gardens have been requisitioned and turned into a military camp.

Four Moslems Killed

Later, four were killed when the troops fired after a violent Muslim mob had stoned the military. The situation has improved.—Reuter.

The driver of the Fiat was Lam Ping-kwong.

STRONG CRAIGENGOWER FOUR ELIMINATED

CLUB DE RECREIO COMBINATION IN SEMI-FINAL ROUND

WINNERS SHOW BETTER FORM IN AN EXCITING CONTEST

(By "Sagax")

When two of the strongest lawn bowls rinks in the Colony are matched against each other there is every justification to anticipate a match of the highest standard but the bowls in the quarter-final of the Open Rinks Championship on the Kowloon Bowling Green Club yesterday afternoon between the strongest quartettes from the Craigengower C. C. and the Club de Recreio, the two leading Clubs in the Colony, was not as high as many had expected and but for the brilliance of U. M. Omar, of the Happy Valley four, the Portuguese players would have given their opponents such a severe trouncing that the match would have been entirely without interest.

However, although the members of the Craigengower team were outplayed on the great majority of the heads, Omar revealed his very best form and literally carried the rink throughout the match. He was the outstanding player and although his rink suffered defeat by 18 shots to 12 and he was not able to save them from elimination, he scored a personal triumph and justified the confidence placed in him last Saturday when I intimated that he would be one of the first choices for the position of skip against the Shanghai players in the forthcoming Interplay matches.

On yesterday's performance the Craigengower skip will walk into one of the Hongkong rinks. He played a brand of bowls that was worthy of the best in the East and had it not been for him the match would have been entirely devoid of excitement. As it was there was always the thrill of awaiting Omar's turn to bowl to see exactly how he would extricate his side from difficult, and sometimes almost impossible, situations. It seemed that the more difficult the position the more brilliant was the Craigengower player, who, however, received a fair share of the luck and was thus able to bring off some spectacular shots which, on many another occasion, would have failed.

OMAR'S DIFFICULT TASK
There were indeed few heads on which the first three Craigengower players were able to lay the shot against their steadier and more consistent opponents, which left Omar with the task of having to save or draw shots on practically every head and he was never once allowed to relax. This was a glorious failure.

In comparison C. G. Silva was only fair, although he brought off some particularly good shots. He was given little to do but was never as reliable as he was in the previous match when he and F. X. M. da Silva eliminated R. P. Luz and H. Beer. And he not received such excellent support from his No. 3, F. X. M. da Silva, and his lead, J. E. Noronha, the game might easily have gone in the other direction.

The Craigengower rink, consisting of J. Cavanagh, B. W. Bradbury, H. Beer and U. M. Omar, while the Club de Recreio quartette comprised J. E. Noronha, C. E. Marques, F. X. M. da Silva and C. G. Silva. Noronha was an ideal lead and, with the exception of a few heads,

Portuguese Score At Taikoo

IN OPEN RINKS CONTEST

The Club de Recreio rink, L. J. Silva, L. J. Xavier, F. V. V. Ribeiro and H. A. Alves (Skip) defeated the Craigengower quartette, A. A. Raznek, M. A. R. Souza, A. S. Gomes and D. Rumjahn (skip) by 27 shots to 21 in the quarter-final of the Open Rink Lawn Bowls Championship.

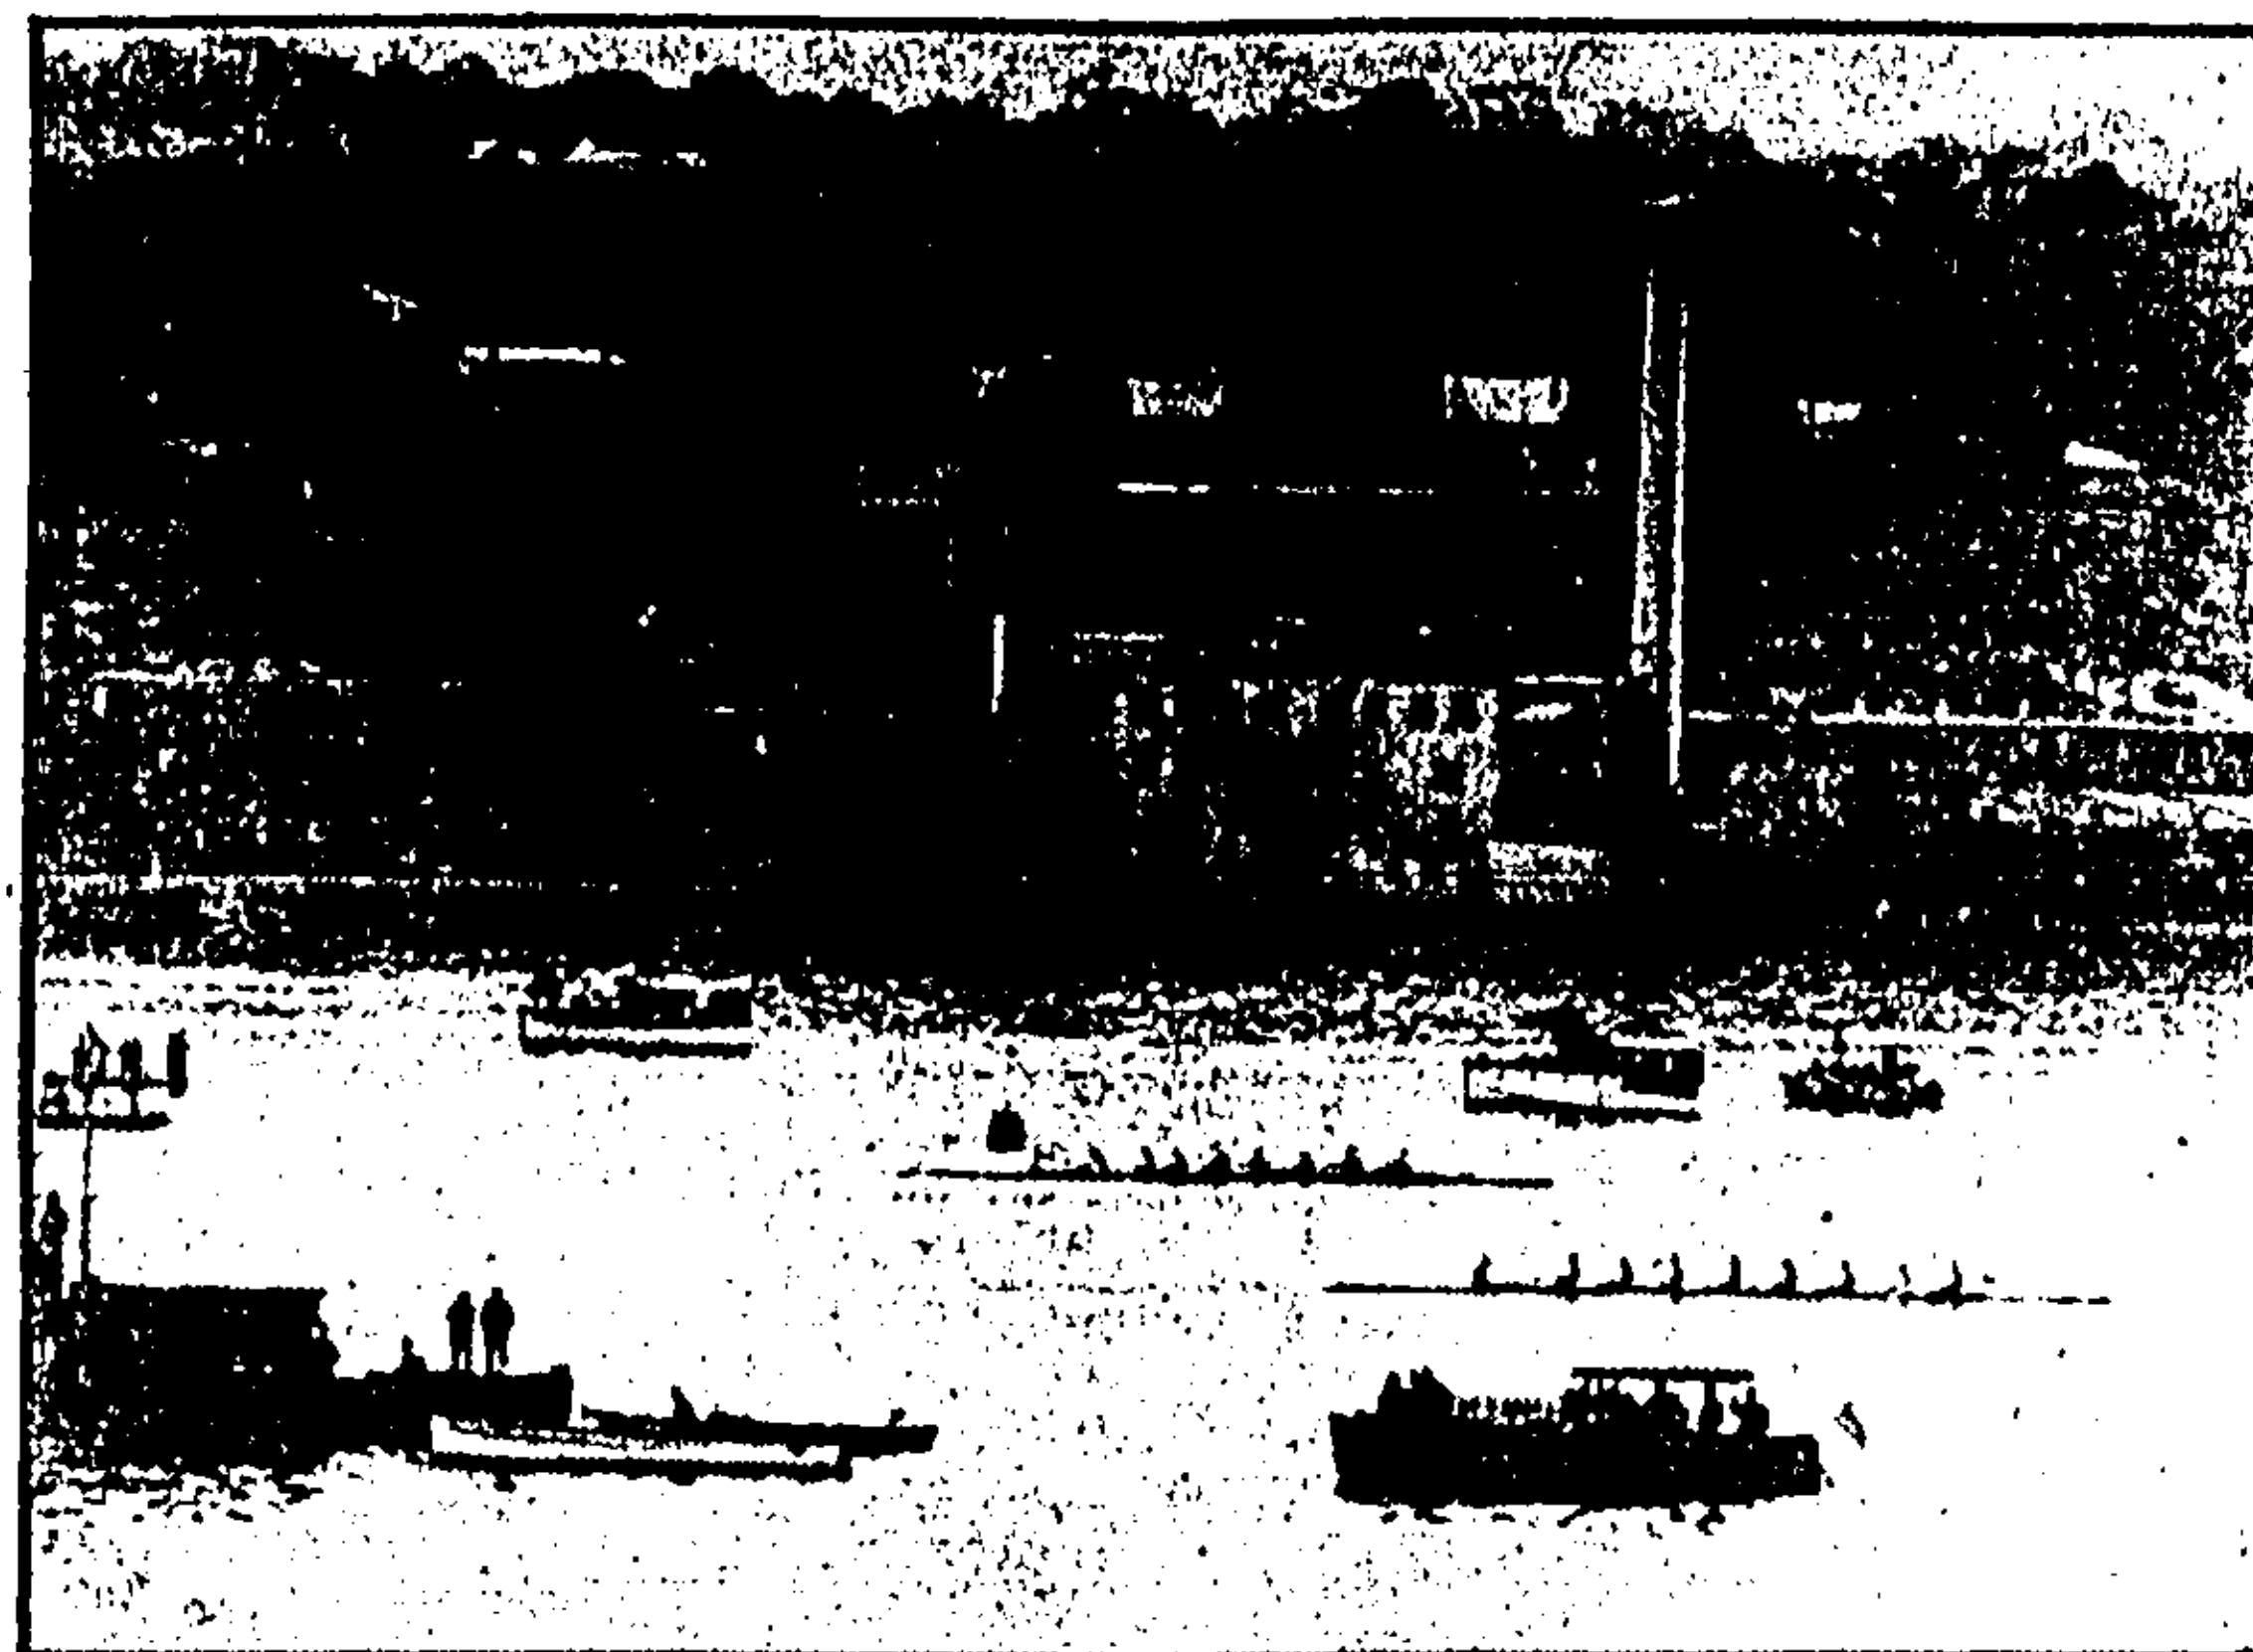

The winners led throughout, and the bowling was not up to the standard expected. All the eight players were below form, although Alves, who was the outstanding bowler, showed excellent woods. He was often called upon to save his side, and he was by far the better skip. Rumjahn was completely off form, and very erratic.

Souza was the best player for the Craigengower player, who, however, received a fair share of the luck and was thus able to bring off some spectacular shots which, on many another occasion, would have failed.

Cavanagh completely outplayed with some very accurately placed shots. He sent down some erratic deliveries but his errors were covered up successfully by the players following him.

F. X. M. SILVA SHINES
Cavanagh had an off-day and only occasionally revealed his best form while Bradbury was a shade better of the two seconds. He put in some good work but also sent

TRIBUTE TO KATHARINE STAMMERS

SECRET OF HER SUCCESS

London, July 9.
Miss Katharine Stammers—“Why will the papers always print my name as Katharine or Katherine?” she once remarked—is the sports girl of the year.

By her crushing victory over Mrs. Helen Wills Moody in the Kent lawn tennis championships, she has suddenly become a world figure. Her name and the way in which she won were called to all parts of the globe.

Millions of people are talking about her, the first young woman ever to score a love set against Mrs. Moody.

No flash in the pan, for Miss Stammers became British hard court champion at Bournemouth last month after beating three Wightman Cup players—Mrs. M. K. King, Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Peggy Scriven.

Now Kay, as her friends call her, is beginning to live down a three-year-old reputation for unreliability.

Her youthful bursts of brilliance are coming too often for our selectors to ignore her any longer.

She has got to get a place in the Wightman Cup team! Her real secret of success is an immense pluck—the pluck to hit and go on hitting as distinct from the pedestrian type of game, net-it-back-somewhere.

In court deportment she reminds one of Mrs. Wills Moody. Winning or losing she is always a sports-woman.

On current form she has as good a chance of winning at Wimbledon in the next fortnight as any other competitor—if only she can master what she herself calls that dithery feeling, and keep as inwardly composed as she always appears outwardly to be.

She had nothing in the way of reputation to lose against Mrs. Moody; but the following day she was over-anxious when opposing Miss Dorothy Round and it had the psychological effect of acting like a brake upon her will to win.

Miss Stammers, however, is only 21 and what would she be more good than anything would be the

JACK PETERSEN'S WIMBLEDON FUTURE

TO FIGHT IN OWN CLASS

(By Geoffrey Simpson)

London, June 27.
Whatever hope remained that Jack Petersen would meet the new world heavy-weight champion, James J. Braddock, before the year was out vanished into the rain-drenched air at Wembley on Tuesday night.

His second defeat by Walter Neusel was a cruel blow, and even “Pa” Petersen, the supreme optimist where his son is concerned, seems to appreciate that the main chance of world title status now lies in the cruiser-weight division, in which the limit is 12st. 7lb.

The physical handicap under which Petersen has laboured in all his heavy-weight ventures was never made more plain than against Neusel. He was beaten by the German's strength and size as much as anything.

WILL DO HIM GOOD
When he is 25—two years hence—Petersen may have filled out sufficiently to mingle with the world's big men with an even chance. “Pa” declares that it is characteristic of the family for the male members to reach maturity at that age.

In the meantime, it will probably do Petersen a world of good to meet men of his own physique. His weight on Tuesday was 12st. 9lb. He could easily scale 2lb. less.

The Wembley promoters, encouraged by the big attendance at the fight on such a wet night, are convinced that thousands would flock to see Petersen battling it out with Bob Olin, the New York holder of the cruiser-weight championship.

Of course, they are right. In spite of defeat, Petersen remains the biggest attraction in British boxing. So it is to be hoped Olin will be tempted to accept the attractive offer about to be cabled to him.

Wembley aim to present the bout in early September, which would be an ideal time, escaping the main holiday season and at the same time giving Petersen a chance to get his damaged eye strong again.

Neusel, as expected, is negotiating for a match with Braddock, whom he might beat, but his chance of getting it is so remote that it need not be seriously discussed. The rise of Joe Louis, sensational Detroit Negro, and his smashing win over the colossal Carnera have turned the heavy-weight situation completely round. As I see it, Louis is going to be a greater attraction than Baer ever was.

EVERYTHING
He seems to have everything—boxing ability, fighting fire, terrific hitting, defence, pluck, and staying power. He is being called a coloured Dempsey and a Jack Johnson.

The move now will be to match Louis with Baer in an eliminator in the autumn—and what a fight that will be! If that does not restore the million-dollar gate to boxing nothing will. The winner will then face Braddock in the following summer for the title.

encouragement which only Selectors can supply.

HELEN JACOBS IN A HURRY

SECOND DAY'S RESULTS

(By Stanley N. Doust)

London, June 26.
The terrific thunderstorm that broke at Wimbledon yesterday held up play in the Lawn Tennis Championships till nearly four o'clock.

The courts were flooded, and after the rain ceased only the five courts which were protected by tarpaulin covers were playable. The matches on all the other courts had to be cancelled.

Yesterday the women began their singles. Mrs. Moody, Miss Helen Jacobs, Miss Spiering, and Miss Dorothy Round won their respective matches.

Miss Helen Jacobs played and beat Miss N. Adamson, the Belgian champion, on Court No. 1, by 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Jacobs was in a hurry. She was to be presented at Court, and although her match was scheduled to follow Miss Spiering v. Miss Bentley, owing to the delay caused by the storm, it was not forward.

Miss Jacobs has improved a good deal since last year. During the winter months, which she spent in England, she has worked hard to acquire a flat forehead drive as a variation to her cut shots.

She confident was she yesterday that she never played any shot on her forehead but this new stroke, in consequence there was much more speed in her game even if there was more risk.

Miss Adamson, however, put up a very good fight. Left-handed, she hit the ball well and generally was versatile, and held Miss Jacobs in the first set to three games all.

Miss Dorothy Round had to wait till nearly seven o'clock before she was able to play Miss A. E. L. McOstrich, a persistent left-handed player.

Miss Round won by 6-6, 6-3 in a match disturbed by the rain. Miss McOstrich began brilliantly, and led by 4-2 in the first set. Then the champion improved as she got back to her rhythm, and some of her cross-court back-hand drives had Miss Round outside the court.

Miss Round levelled at 4-all, but she could not stabilise her game, and Miss McOstrich led by 6-5.

From this point onwards it was a contest between the unusual brilliance of Miss Round and the plodding steadiness of Miss McOstrich.

A beautiful stop-volley by Miss Round, and then a drop-shot, gave her a temporary advantage which she immediately threw away by a simple error.

She was, in other words, inconsistent, but just had sufficient in hand to gain the first set.

MEN'S DOUBLES
First Round—J. Yarns and H. Nightingale vs. H. M. Collyer and W. Hines, 6-4, 6-1.

Second Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

Third Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

Fourth Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

Fifth Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

Sixth Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

Seventh Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

Eighth Round—Miss A. Spiering (Denmark) vs. Miss D. G. Beasley (G.B.), 6-2, 6-0.

GIANTS DROP BACK

New York, July 21.

A double header between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns, in the American Baseball League to-day, was shared but the Detroit Tigers, the Yankees' nearest rivals lost their contest against the Boston Red Sox.

The Yankees were given two hard fought matches by the Browns and in the first contest they only won by two runs, after Sellkirk had blanked out the St. Louis team. In the second, the Browns nosed out the Yankees in ten innings.

The Tigers were also nosed out by their opponents, the Red Sox winning by seven runs to six.

Once again the New York Giants, the leaders of the National League suffered defeat and they are losing their commanding lead over the other clubs.

COACHING THE COACHES

SPECIAL SCHOOL STARTED

F. A. SCHEME AT CHELSEA

At last football is to have something really new.

The Football Association have decided to father the scheme of Mr. Stanley Rous, the secretary, to start a summer school for coaches and trainers, and it was to be held at the Duke of York's headquarters, Chelsea, on four days beginning July 15.

There has been an encouraging response. About forty trainers and coaches, who were engaged under the F.A.'s schools' scheme last season, were to attend.

Greatly daring, Mr. Rous launched his plan at the dinner of the Secretaries' and Managers' Association, and created astonishment by suggesting that even the training methods of the professional clubs might be improved.

He indicated that it was a field which had been inadequately explored, and told how new ideas might be introduced to drive away the monotony of the day-to-day lapping and sprinting from which the players suffer.

Mr. Rous has been a keen student of physical culture, and he is convinced that the methods employed in this country lag far behind those used in other countries.

SPECIAL LECTURES

As a matter of fact the footballer to-day trains in the same way as did the player of 30 years ago.

The clubs will have to make a change—they hate all changes even when it means remaining out-of-date—but the course which Mr. Rous has arranged will be derived by the new and enlightened methods which are to be practised.

In addition to training Mr. S. Wilson, of the Carnegie Physical Training College, was to lecture on gymnastics and general athletic activities, and Mr. E. Major, the principal of the Carnegie College, was to deal with the theory and practice of teaching and with elementary psychology.

Football technique and tactics were to be explained by the Rev. K. R. G. Hunt, Mr. Norman Creek, and Mr. James Hogan, and a doctor was to advise on the treatment of minor ailments and injuries.

WALKING RECORD ESTABLISHED

BRITON'S FEAT IN LONDON

TWO MILES TIME

London, July 21.
Cooper, the amateur two-mile champion walker, broke the record for the distance to-day when he beat the previous best time registered by G. Rasmussen.

Cooper covered the two miles in 12 mins. 38.1/5 secs., beating the time of 12 mins. 53.3/5 secs. made by Rasmussen, of Denmark, in July 1918, and also the time of 12 mins. 44.4/5 secs. made by the Canadian, Cleman, which however, has not yet been officially passed.—Reuter.

According to the World Almanac Rasmussen's time of 12 mins. 3/5 secs. was for 3,000 metres which is not quite two miles while the record for the two miles is held by G. E. Larnar, of Great Britain, who covered the distance in England in July 1904, in 13 mins. 11.4 secs.

down some dangerous shots which enabled the opposition to improve their position. Marquess was the worst of the Reccreio players but he occasionally rendered valuable assistance to the rink.

After an indifferent opening F. X. M. da Silva played some brilliant woods and was by far the most consistent player for the winners. He saved many a difficult situation and frequently trailed the jack or drew perfect shots dead on the jack. His opposite number, Harold Beer, was giving but a mediocre display and showed little of his capabilities.

C. G. Silva was not as successful as normally with his heavy deliveries but had his driving been more accurate he would have scored several big counts as the Craigengower four showed a decided reluctance, or inability, to send down back woods, with the exception of the first head on which the Craigengower four lay three when C. G. Silva carried the jack in an attempt to rest a touchy by Bradbury.

A FOUR CONCEDED

The Craigengower's failure to have back woods was early evident for they conceded a four on the second head when C. G. Silva again trailed the jack with his last wood after Omar lay the shot by knocking the jack from Reccreio woods when the Portuguese were lying three.

A single on the third head gave the Reccreio players the lead by 5-3, but when Omar knocked the jack to a cluster of Craigengower woods the Happy Valley side scored their second three to make the score 6-5. When the Craigengower side lay two on the eighth head F. X. M. da Silva carried the jack into the ditch to lay the shot. Omar, with his first wood, sent a touchy into the ditch but was just beaten for the shot.

The Reccreio were lying four shots on the ninth head when Omar went to bowl and with his last wood he saved three, the score being 8-8. After 10-10 was called at the end of the 13th head the Club de Reccreio players scored a two and led at 12-10, but a single and a two gave the Craigengower C. C. the lead at 13-12. On the 15th head Omar had carried the jack into the ditch to lay the shot.

THE FATAL THIRTEEN

However, the Reccreio remained on the fatal 13 for the remainder of the game, during which time the Club de Reccreio rink registered three singles, a two and a single on the last head to win by 18-13.

The sixteenth head saw some fine bowling by the later players of the two sides. When the Craigengower C. C. were lying three F. X. M. da Silva carried the jack among a cluster of Reccreio's back woods and lay four short which seemed perfectly safe until Omar, with a heavy delivery bumped a front wood on to the jack, which struck the Reccreio back woods and ricocheted to a Craigengower wood on the side of the Reccreio bunch.

AMERICA TAKES LEAD

DONALD BUDGE
WINS

London, July 20.
The United States led Germany by a match to nil in the final round of the Davis Cup competition, which is being played at Wimbledon.

Donald Budge beat Hienkel after four strenuous sets, 7-5, 11-9, 6-8, 6-1. Rain caused the postponement of the match between Wilmer Allison (U.S.) and Gottfried von Cramm, which was also scheduled to be played to-day.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed when it was decided not to play this match. Thousands of spectators became annoyed and threw cushions on the court, some of them hitting the linesmen's heads.

Beer bottles also were thrown into the court and broke into pieces on the turf. The storm of cushions continued for ten minutes until policemen came on the court, and the spectators departed for want of more ammunition.

It was announced later that the Allison-von Cramm match will be played on Monday, the doubles on Tuesday and the remaining singles on Wednesday.

BUDGE NOT AT BEST

Hienkel fully extended Budge in the first three sets of their encounter, but though he won the third, he could only obtain one game in the fourth, which was finished in twelve minutes. The scores were 7-5, 11-9, 6-8 and 6-1 in favour of Budge.

It was a match of streaks and patches, with the American scoring the anticipated victory. Budge, however, failed, until the fourth electrifying set, which was over in twelve minutes, to reveal the controlled speed which took him into the semi-finals of the Wimbledon championships.

Both youngsters seemed to sense the importance of the match and seemed nervous. Budge made lots of spectacular winners, but he also made blunders in control and length, and quite unworthy of the occasion.

Hienkel fought doggedly from the base line, relying wholly on retrieving the American's wild-flung drives to the corners, and scoring on Budge's mistakes.

The German was inclined to be lacking in initiative and allowed Budge to dictate the terms of the fight. Both produced stylish drives and well-balanced serving, and both showed a preference for the back-hand.

Budge was speedier in all departments and had a deadly smash at the net. —Reuter.

MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS

Kowloon C. C. Teams To Meet To-day

Only one match is being played in the Mixed Doubles Lawn Tennis League to-day, that between the two Kowloon Cricket Club teams.

The officially revised fixtures were to have come into force to-day but the U. S. R. C., who were to have met the Kowloon C. C. "A" team, have been further postponed to allow the Kowloon C. C. to adhere to their original fixture which was privately arranged, sometime ago.

London, July 20.
It is announced in Swansea that Sir William Pirbright, a leading employer, has offered £25,000 towards a superannuation scheme in the tin plate industry. Employers generally have offered another £25,000 and it was stated that workmen were willing to give two and half per cent. of their wages. —British Wireless.

AMERICAN ATHLETES DISCIPLINED

How Helen Jacobs Trained For Wimbledon

American athletes are brought up to a knowledge of methodical training. From high school days, through college, the members of teams are subjected to strict rules of diet, and exercise, and to the regulation of their hours of sleep. This disciplined physical culture has meant a great deal to American tennis. All of our best players, both men and women, are acquainted with it, and to very few of them is it a burden to observe the rules of training when they are preparing for tournament tennis.

I have always felt that it is necessary to have a training for tennis. The game is not seasonal; it is played all the year round, reaching its climax in the summer months. Herein it differs from team sports which have a definite season, up to which time strict training must be observed, but after which the players can do as they like. A broad view of the collected activities of tennis competitors proves that if the players trained before their matches they would be obliged to train all the year.

Take, as an example, Fred Perry's last tennis year. He started play in the British Hardcourt Championships at Bournemouth. After this tournament, which he won, he went to Paris to play in the French Championships. Next came Wimbledon and the Davis Cup matches, after which he sailed for the United States to play in our National singles, doubles, and mixed doubles events. With the termination of these tournaments, and after having won the singles title, he went to California, playing several exhibition matches en route.

He competed successfully in the Pacific South-west Championship at Los Angeles; then, after a brief respite, sailed for Australia where he played during most of the winter. His season this year appears to be planned along similar lines.

Perry were to inflict upon himself strict training at all times, he would undoubtedly become too strong for us as he does through the year. My own rules of training are quite simple. I have undergone the rigors of training in high school. My regimen in the swimming team coincided with my first athletic activities at serious lawn tennis. I was enabled to follow the training voluntarily because I thought it wise to follow these rules in season.

I took a supervised luncheon at school, ate no sweets between meals, and went to bed as near midnight as possible. This went on for four years, but during that time I built up the habit of endurance, and the eyesight that have stood me in good stead for eleven years of strenuous competitive tennis.

Now my rules have somewhat altered. Having lost, to my regret, my taste for sweets, it is no longer unpleasant to forego them, and this has enabled me to lose much of the weight that two years ago was a serious threat to my endurance.

My diet has never been a serious problem. It is no punishment to me to eat the things I like to eat, and I am able to eat in perfect candour, however, I must admit one exception. Several years ago I decided upon a luncheon diet which I considered ideal during the tennis season. The menu was simple—lamb chops, tomato, and toast.

For several years I fancied that I played better tennis after this uninteresting luncheon than I did when I enjoyed a more palatable meal. In this respect I was decidedly hard on myself, for I have allowed the lamb chops, tomatoes and toast to become a pre-nuptial ritual. Toward the end of tournament I never see this combination placed before me without experiencing infinite loathing. Fortunately my appetite always wanes during match-play, and I still feel that if I eat anything this dull luncheon is the most sensible.

To one rule I have always adhered strictly and willingly—that of ten hours' sleep during tournaments. It is as necessary for me to sleep from ten-thirty to eight-thirty or nine as it is for me to practice my shots. I have known players who could produce their best games with not more than seven or eight hours' sleep, and more than exceptional cases, with not more than five hours' sleep, but they are, I believe, in the minority.

I have found that I require no other physical training than tennis to keep fit for tournaments. Tennis embraces nearly all the callisthenic exercises one stretches, one bends forward, sideways, backwards—one stretches, in fact, in almost every direction, and in view of this fact I think it is quite unnecessary to do setting-up exercises before matches, and much wiser to rest.

Training should be a matter of personal requirement. What I have found to be essential or superfluous in my own case does not necessarily apply to anyone else.

John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison used to rise at seven in the morning and run for an hour when they were preparing for the season and first began to take their team play seriously. Lacoste used to do callisthenics every morning whether he was playing or not, but this was intended to build up a rather frail constitution. Sidney Wood was trained all last winter by the man who trained Jack Dempsey—I remember seeing a photograph of him or rather of his feet on the floor in front of his head, but this too was intended to increase his unsatisfactory endurance.

I am fortunate in having a little more than the ordinary initial and reserve strength for the game I play, so that I can play tennis under what I consider ideal conditions—living my normal, everyday life.

SERIAL STORY—

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McEllott © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XXVII

Michael shook his head. "We can't do that, Sally. I said rather heavily. 'Why not?' All girlish imperiousness, she asked him. 'Why on earth can't we? Anyone here can take charge—Jerry or anybody.'"

Michael's face darkened imperceptibly.

"Oh, don't be stuffy about it, Michael, darling!" trilled the girl. "I'm not trying to boss you around. I'm just telling you how easy it would be. 'Imagine a honeymoon at sea—and at Buenos Aires. I've always wanted to see it, Michael. We'd have glorious times.' Her eyes glittered. 'Can't be done,' the man told her. 'Something came up to-day—important business.'"

"Really?" Her rounded face assumed a greedy, sly expression. "Tell me about it. With sudden clarity and horror he had a vision of what the news meant—to Sally Moon. Lady Garden—Sally as Lady Garden. Castles, Monte. A crest on her stationery.

Lord, he was in for it now, right enough. If he could head off those detectives, if he could only prevent the news from leaking out before he broke the news of his marriage to this girl...

But how was it to be done? Frankly, Michael was daunted. He who owned to no feat in this world, quailed before the prospect of blazing feminine eyes, tears, reproaches.

"It's business I've got to see to tonight—right away," he improvised in haste.

She pouted. "You haven't been to see me since Tuesday."

"I know. Sorry. You aren't to be behaving—oh, dreadfully," she reproached him.

"Have I done anything?" There was a good deal more of this. The man, feeling oppressed by her cloying, possessive sweetness, managed somehow to get away.

"I've got to go into New York."

"Oh, Michael, I'll run you in and wait for you and then we can go some place to dance later."

"It was always like this. Always. She didn't want to let him out of her sight."

He said, "Can't be done. It may take hours. All night."

She frowned, drawing her heavy brows together. Thus seen, the prettiness, the coquetry was lost. You saw Sally Moon as she would be 20 years hence.

"That's funny. Queer business that takes all night. After we're married, darling, you won't be able to get away with this."

She smiled, and there was menace behind the playfulness. But she drove off, having secured his promise to come around to see her in the morning. She wanted to hear all about it and he was to make arrangements about the South American trip.

"You're in a fix and no mistake, young fellow-me-lad," muttered Michael to himself.

He had let himself be caught, and not entirely unwittingly. The night he'd gone back to her house from the Bath Club, the night she'd been giddy from too many cocktails, he had simply let her "get away with it." He'd been too weak, too chivalrous, too contradicted when she had announced they were to be married.

Now he must pay for that weakness and error. Just at first it hadn't been unpleasant to find himself "engaged" to this little warm, cuddling, confidential person with the large eyes and the rippling laugh. It had been like a warm blanket.

He had needed that, rather. Especially when Katharine had appeared to have forgotten he existed.

Katharine. The name, the very thought of her brought a sparkle to his eyes.

Katharine. His wife. It was all part of the dream. He'd have to tell Katharine about the inheritance. It made him, all at once, worthy of her. He needn't be ashamed to take her hand in his, before her people. They couldn't say she was "marrying down" now.

But, on the verge of sitting down to write the important news to her (he thought he dare not risk another telephone call) he hesitated.

"Why tell her? Why not wait and 'spring' it as a most delightful surprise?" It was a most delightful surprise he claimed her, as a very special "going-away present."

That's what he would do.

To find he must go into the city and find Mr. Downrigg—was that the name?—at the Waldorf and beg him to keep the facts out of the newspapers. For a while, at least.

Michael called Clarence and told him he was going to New York and wouldn't be back until the late train. He ran the shabby little car around and went into the station.

The trip into the city seemed undeniably long. Michael burned with a fever of impatience. Two weeks from now—three weeks, anyhow—the whole thing would be over and done with. He and Katharine would be en route for Ireland to see the case. They would be starting out on the most marvellous, unpredictable adventure in the world.

Marrying!

He'd never thought much about it, but it seemed to him, all at once, the most glorious of adventures. Katharine opposite him in a deep chair.

Lamplight and firelight on her exquisite face and fair hair.

Oh, he was a lucky man!

The train, after endless creaking and grunting, finally drew up reluctantly at the long concrete platform. Michael was the first one to leap off when the door swung open. Up the ramp he strode, hatless and hand-some in his worn tweeds. Several home-going commuters, weary after a hot day on baking streets, turned enviously to watch him. There was something almost winged about his walk.

He felt in his pocket for his wallet, and with a muttered exclamation of impatience remembered that he had thrust it into a drawer just after returning home from the momentous journey with Katharine. Their marriage certificate was in it. . . . and most of his money. But he had some loose change and a dollar or two in his trousers pocket, so he could take a taxi.

Rain had just descended upon the city. Pavements which had burned all day under the sun were now slick with rushing currents. Drakes squealed as drivers drew up at red lights.

Michael sank back in the leather-cushioned seat, trying to relax, to compose his thoughts for the interview to come. Downrigg would understand Michael's distaste for publicity. The lawyer was a Briton and they were like that.

The taxi driver, a sullen-looking fellow with a cap pulled low over his eyes, jammed on his brakes with a fearful, soul-curdling shriek. There was a dull impact, a crash of glass. Michael felt a blow descending, just before unconsciousness—morally blotted out the pain.

He was not aware of the gathering crowd, the ambulance that presently came clanging along. A personable young man in worn tweeds, he lay there, crumpled, hatless, a bruise on his forehead.

"Looks like concussion," the ambulance doctor said. He was a spry, fair youngster with bright blue eyes. "Any papers on him—driving licence or anything?"

This was in the emergency room of the hospital to which Michael had been taken. The crisp nurse shook her head. "Not a thing, doctor. About two dollars. And yes—something else. A plain gold wedding ring. With no initials on it."

Too small for him, though. A woman's ring.

The young intern whistled softly. He was young enough and new enough at his job to be interested and to have a bit of romantic.

"Wedding ring? Looks like some gal gave him the air."

Michael did not hear or see the people bending over him. He wandered in the borderland; in his dream Katharine's face was smiling at him.

(To Be Continued.)

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Nell O'Day although just out of her teens, has seen more trouping than many an older actress.

The charming imp, who currently enacts the role of Helen Grant in Dashiell Hammett's "Woman in the Dark," began her stage career while in high school.

Born in Prairie Hill, Texas, she was educated in Los Angeles in stage productions. Lee Tracy, Jimmy Durante, Sally Eilers and two-and-one-half-year-old Dickie Walters, who makes his motion picture debut in this production, are the principal players.

Crammed full of laughs, action, thrills and suspense, this picture is due to be written by Robert Riskin, author of "Lady for a Day," "It Happened One Night" and "Broadway Bill."

"Carnival" is a product Columbia should be justly proud of. Lee Tracy is seen as a fast-talking carnival man, who talks himself in and out of jams.

When his wife dies leaving him with an infant son, he finds himself in a situation. He wants to bring up the child, "Poochy" himself, but the baby's grandparents raise objections.

Forcefully, Lee takes the baby from the hospital. The picture workers trace him down. But Tracy enters "Poochy" in a baby contest. The kid hasn't a chance in competition with the other babies, but Durante and his dexterous fingers switch votes and "Poochy" is declared winner.

The house is discovered and they're both sentenced to serve time in jail. The climax is one of the most thrilling scenes the screen has ever shown.

Tracy once again turns in a fine performance as Chick Thompson, the famous Durango officer, plenty of comedy relief and his schizoid and various antics are again in evidence. Sally Eilers is a beautiful "Daisy," and offers a commendable portrayal. But as "Poochy" Dickie Walters is bound to win the hearts of all. His lines are spoken like a veteran. Walter Lang directed.

"I am a Thief"

The mystery melodrama "I Am a Thief" held audiences in breath-taking suspense at the Alhambra Theatre yesterday, where it was shown on the screen for the first time locally, with Mary Astor and Ricardo Cortez in the stellar roles. The story is set in the Continental background of Paris and France, where the criminal finally beautiful adventures and men of diabolical cleverness, plot to steal the famous Karantina diamonds, almost priceless jewels, which have been auctioned off as a bait to catch the King of Jazz.

The thieves' crime after crime is compelling and successful appearance as Joe Cooke's leading lady in "Fine and Dandy." Fox Films called her West again for "Rackety Rax" and "Smoke Lightning." Then came more stage appearances, vaudeville tours, and now "Rackety Rax" and "Smoke Lightning," filmed by Select Production.

Miss O'Day feels that her part in "Woman in the Dark" offered a fine opportunity. "Woman in the Dark" is coming to the King's Theatre on Tuesday.

"Carnival"

With a cast containing some of screenland's most outstanding players, "Carnival," a Columbia picture will be shortly seen at the Queen's Theatre. Lee Tracy, Jimmy Durante, Sally Eilers and two-and-one-half-year-old Dickie Walters, who makes his motion picture debut in this production, are the principal players.

"Carnival" is a product Columbia should be justly proud of. Lee Tracy is seen as a fast-talking carnival man, who talks himself in and out of jams.

When his wife dies leaving him with an infant son, he finds himself in a situation. He wants to bring up the child, "Poochy" himself, but the baby's grandparents raise objections.

Forcefully, Lee takes the baby from the hospital. The picture workers trace him down. But Tracy enters "Poochy" in a baby contest. The kid hasn't a chance in competition with the other babies, but Durante and his dexterous fingers switch votes and "Poochy" is declared winner.

The house is discovered and they're both sentenced to serve time in jail. The climax is one of the most thrilling scenes the screen has ever shown.

Tracy once again turns in a fine performance as Chick Thompson, the famous Durango officer, plenty of comedy relief and his schizoid and

"It's A Small World"

Raymond Walburn, veteran stage actor, likens his entry into motion pictures, to that of an Eskimo experiencing his first elevator ride. It is at once awe inspiring and impressive.

Walburn, after more than twenty-five years behind the footlights in theatres all over the world, was signed to the screen contract and brought to Hollywood. He has been here four months and appeared in five pictures.

Among the most important are "The Count of Monte Cristo," "Broadway Bill" and "It's A Small World." Fox Films comedy now at the King's Theatre. "I thought my years in the theatre had taught me all there was to know about acting," he says, "but the short time I've been here convinces me I'm just learning. And the tricks of the business are the most astounding. One morning I saw a man come onto the set. He handed me a razor and told me to shave some fellow lying back in a barber chair. I explained to the director I'd never shaved a man before. He laughed and said that was all right; if I cut the mug they'd retake the scene."

In "It's A Small World," Walburn appears with Spencer Tracy and Wendy Barrie. He plays a small town judge, who is also village barber, hotel owner, garage keeper, jitney bus driver, and farmer.

"Vagabond Lady"

Although it has several dramatic moments, "Vagabond Lady," the Hal Roach-M-G-M feature now currently playing at the Queen's Theatre is in reality a comedy. For despite the seriousness of many situations in which the various players are involved as the story unfolds, delightful humour is threaded throughout the production which was so deftly directed by Sam Taylor.

Featured in the large imposing cast are Robert Young, Evelyn Venable, Berton Churchill, Reginald Denny, Frank Craven and others. The story concerns itself with the romantic adventures of a young girl, who, one of the first families, and one whose undying motto "Up or Down" is carried to such an extremity that it is responsible for a number of untoward happenings.

"The Woman in Red"

Barbara Stanwyck's latest starring picture, "The Woman in Red," will open at the Alhambra Theatre on Wednesday. It is a colourful and picturesque drama based on Wallace Irwin's best-selling novel, "North Shore," and is filled with thrills and intensely dynamic situations. In and a sensational trial in which a young girl allows her reputation to be torn to shatters in order to save an innocent man from conviction of murder. A society horse show, staged at the famous Los Angeles Biltmore Club, and with some of the finest and bloodiest horses of the West Coast taking part, adds to the interest of the production. There also are exciting polo matches in which Gene Raymond, Miss Stanwyck's romantic lead, and one of the best horsemen in Hollywood, takes active part. This is the first time Miss Stanwyck and Raymond have been cast together and the couple are said to take an ideal pair of screen lovers. There is a quadrangular love affair, Genevieve Tobin in the role of a wealthy but fanatical society woman, being Miss Stanwyck's rival for the love of Raymond, while John

KING'S JUBILEE

BRITAIN'S POLICE FORCE ON PARADE

London, July 20.
The last of the great Silver Jubilee reviews was held in London to-day. It was the first Royal Review of Britain's Police and the only occasion on which the unarmed forces of the Crown had been gathered together in such large numbers for any purpose whatever. Altogether 8,000 representatives of the Police Forces of England, Wales and Scotland were gathered in Hyde Park, contingents having come from 181 county, city and borough forces in England and Wales and 48 forces in Scotland.

Every branch of the Police Services was represented, including Scotland Yard detectives, mounted police, special constables, women police, flying squad, cars and wireless vans.

Many of the 4,000 provincial police officers had brought their families with them to London for the event, which was without precedent, since the present police system was established over 100 years ago.

When the King, accompanied by the Queen, drove from Buckingham Palace to Hyde Park, the route was lined by 2,000 Metropolitan Police and special constables. Their Majesties, having received the Royal salute from the parade, entered an open carriage and drove through lines of officers. Afterwards, led by Lord Tren-chard, Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, the parade marched past the King in columns of eight.—British Wireless.

Royal Family

London, July 20.
The Prince of Wales is next week flying by seaplane to the Channel Islands on a short official visit. He will proceed first to Jersey, where he will open a new memorial hall at Victoria College and will be greeted by 7,000 children, practically all those in the island.

On the following morning he will fly to Guernsey and perform a round of official duties, leaving by seaplane for the mainland in the evening.—British Wireless.

Chinese Ambassador

London, July 21.
The Queen received the Chinese Ambassador and Madame Quo Tsi-chi.—Reuter.

CHEKIANG FINANCES

Shanghai, July 21.
After concluding his trip to Szechwan to confer with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, on financial problems of Chekiang, General Huang Shao-shung, Chairman of the Chekiang Provincial Government, arrived here yesterday.

Interviewed, General Huang said that the deficit amounting to more than two million dollars, which was incurred in Chekiang last year would be made up, as Marshal Chiang has consented to ask the Central Government, to make a special appropriation for the provincial government.

Szechuen Position

As to bandit suppression work in Szechuen General Huang said that only three towns in that province are still in the hands of Red remnants, who are expected to be exterminated by Government troops very shortly.—Central News Agency.

LL. GEORGE PLAN

GOVERNMENT'S SHARP INDICTMENT

London, July 21.
The Government's reasons for rejecting Mr. Lloyd George's New Deal, including the Prosperity Loan of £250,000,000 are given in detail in a 16,000 word statement, setting out their considered reply to all points in Mr. Lloyd George's proposals, which are described as "broad generalisations."

In certain instances they might actually affect adversely the progress already made towards national recovery.

The statement says that Mr. Lloyd George's industrial re-organisation proposals are vague and will not decrease unemployment; his overseas Trade suggestions are disappointing and add little of value to what has been achieved; the proposals for a public works programme produce no new and good suggestions, while the proposal for a National Development Board, and specially a small cabinet, would divorce policy from administration and are unacceptable.

Russia and China

The statement contends that Mr. Lloyd George's suggestions with regard to Russia ignore the fundamental developments of that country, and in referring to China, the statement points out that Mr. Lloyd George's own agricultural proposals would exclude more than one-third of China's exports to Britain. It goes on to say that the question of possible action to assist China is continuously engaging the attention of the Government, in common with other interested Powers, and mentions the appointment of the Leith Ross Mission. It also says that some expansion of trade with China can be hoped for, but the situation is such that Mr. Lloyd George, in speaking of "unlimited room for its expansion," can only be said to ignore the hard facts of the case as they actually stand to-day.

The statement concludes that the work done and contemplated by the Government at least shows that there is a practical alternative to Mr. Lloyd George's proposals.

"Prosperity Loan"

The statement says that finance need be no obstacle to any sound, solid scheme, but the proposed Prosperity Loan of £250,000,000 would involve serious financial dislocation and be deflationary in effect.

The Statement described Mr. Lloyd George's estimates for the possible reduction of unemployment as highly speculative and says that no real weight can be attached to them.

There are no details or estimates in his public works proposals, and it is a misconception to suppose that a vast quantity of hitherto undiscovered work, capable of giving unemployment to large numbers, lies waiting to be put in hand.

With regard to the agricultural proposals, which the Statement describes as the core of Mr. Lloyd George's Plan, it says that they are a hazardous and uncertain adventure, which could be achieved, if at all, only at the cost of a great and artificially created increased price in food, a grave injury to Empire Trade and relations, intensified difficulties for export trade, and unemployment for the industrial population.—Reuter.

SIR AUSTEN'S SON

LIEUTENANT CHAMBERLAIN IN HANDS OF WAHABIS

Jerusalem, July 21.
Lieutenant Joseph Chamberlain, son of Sir Austen Chamberlain, company officer in the Trans-jordan Frontier Force stationed at Zerka, is reported to be in the hands of the Wahabis, having crossed with a patrol from Akaba into Hedjaz.

It is possible, in view of the frontier negotiations with Ibn Saud, that the release of Lieutenant Chamberlain may be delayed.

Transjordan consists of four districts of Maan, Kerak, Balqa and Ajlun, and is under the mandate of Palestine. It is bounded on the west by Palestine, on the north by Syria, on the East by Iraq, and on the South by Saudi Arabia, and has access to the sea at Akaba, on the Red Sea. The Transjordan Frontier Force is under the command of Lieutenant Colonel C. H. Miller, and is responsible for the frontier that separates the country from Hedjaz.

Release Expected

London, July 21.
No significance is attached to the detention of Lieutenant Chamberlain, and his early release is expected.

The delay is due to the necessity of communicating with Jeddah by runner, but his release has already been arranged through the usual diplomatic channels.

Lieutenant Chamberlain inadvertently crossed the frontier in Saudi-Arabian territory on July 13 in an Army transport car and was arrested by the Saudi authorities. The second vehicle which went in search of him was also detained.—Reuter.

CHARITY CONCERT

IN AID OF EDUCATION OF POOR PORTUGUESE

Success attended the opening concert of the season given by the Liga Portuguesa of Hongkong at the Club de Recreio, King's Park, on Saturday night, among those present being Mr. A. B. Laborinho, Consul General for Portugal, Mr. J. A. de Almeida, President of the Liga Portuguesa, Mr. E.V.M.R. de Souza, President of the Club de Recreio, Dr. F. M. Graça, President of the Club Lusitano, Mr. Leo D'Almeida e Castro, Jnr., Capt. A. Xavier and Dr. B. de Souza.

During the evening two plays, one a comedy and the other a farce, in Portuguese, were presented, while the musical side of the programme was in the capable hands of the popular "Albino Serenaders" with whom were Mr. G. D'Almeida (singer) and Miss Margarida Botelho (piano).

The first play, written by Mr. J. A. de Almeida and entitled "Mad Doctor," was well acted by the author, as the mad doctor, Lucia Jorge as his charming wife, Jose de Almeida as a schemer, Sebastiao de Pinna as the doctor's servant, and Alberto Botelho as a young man in the "eighties."

The second play, a domestic farce, also written by Mr. J. A. de Almeida, brought forth much laughter, the players interpreting their roles splendidly. They were Lobato de Farin, Lucia Jorge, Jose de Almeida and Conrado Joaquinho.

The committee who supervised arrangements for the evening was as follows:—J. A. de Almeida, P. A. Xavier, F. P. Pereira and F. G. Barroca.

The proceeds will be devoted to the education of poor Portuguese boys of the Colony.

Mr. Laborinho is Patron of the Liga Portuguesa.

BRITAIN MAKES FINAL EFFORT TO AVERT WAR

BUT ITALY STILL UNYIELDING COMPROMISE OFFER MADE TO ROME

MUSSOLINI IGNORES CONCESSION PLAN

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 22, 1.15 p.m.)

Rome, July 22.

Great Britain's Ambassador here, Sir Eric Drummond, has held several consultations with Signor Benito Mussolini in an eleventh-hour effort to avert an Italo-Abyssinian war.

But it is learned that Emperor Selassie's recent address to his Parliament, in which he alleged that Italy had been planning the invasion of Abyssinia for forty years, and other fiery utterances, have closed the door to arbitration or to compromise. War is Italy's only recourse, the Government leaders believe.

The conversations between Sir Eric and Signor Mussolini were conducted in an atmosphere of scepticism. While they were proceeding, Signor Mussolini ordered the steamer Arabia to sail for Africa with troops and supplies.

It has been announced that Italy's military appropriations for the African campaign up to June 30 amounted to £26,000,000.

The plan which Sir Eric Drummond, supported by the French Ambassador, M. de Chambrun, desires to submit to Italy, provides, firstly, for the limitation of Ethiopia's frontiers; secondly, for economic concessions to Italy; thirdly, the construction of an Italian railroad across Abyssinia linking Eritrea and Italian Somaliland; and fourthly, the appointment of Italian counsellors in Ethiopia similar to the British advisers in Egypt.—United Press.

PROTECTING DIPLOMATS

Foreign Powers with representatives at Addis Ababa are taking urgent steps to protect their diplomats in the event of an early outbreak of war.

The despatch of a million sandbags from Egypt for the use of the British Legation at Addis Ababa are among the measures taken to ensure the safety of Sir Sidney Barton, the British Consul-General to Ethiopia, and his staff.

It is the consensus of opinion in Egypt and the Sudan that war is inevitable and that it is only a question of when zero hour will be called.

It is thought that the fact that the League Council is meeting on July 29 to endeavour to prevent an outbreak of hostilities may actually result in hastening the clash. On the other hand, bad weather may render an early Italian offensive most difficult.

According to very reliable sources about 120,000 Italian troops have already passed through the Suez Canal and another 10,000 men are en route from Italy.

Reports that tens of thousands of Italian troops have already been invalided home from Masawa and Mekele should be disregarded, Reuter learns. It is understood that the total of troops evacuated up to the present is only equal to the normal wastage due to the trying climatic conditions.—Reuter Special.

STALEMATE

The sharpness of the Anglo-Italian cleavage over Italy's demands for complete overlordship in Abyssinia has temporarily stalemated the diplomatic conversations between London, Paris and Rome, although efforts to secure a peaceful settlement have by no means been abandoned.

JAPANESE GOODWILL MISSIONER

MR. DEBUCHI IN HONGKONG

BOUND FOR AUSTRALIA

En route to Australia to return the goodwill mission of Mr. Latham who recently visited Japan, His Excellency Mr. K. Debuichi, Japanese Ambassador Extraordinary to Australia, arrived in Hongkong this morning by the Dollar liner President Wilson.

Mr. Debuichi was formerly the Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

"My mission to Australia," he stated today, "is purely one of goodwill; there is no particular diplomatic mission involved or special business negotiation. I will merely convey to the people of Australia the friendship and goodwill of the Japanese." The Ambassador will continue to New Zealand and return through Hongkong in October.

"The business relations of Australia and Japan are supplementary and not competitive," stated Mr. Debuichi, "and I predict a steady increase in the future. The relations between the two countries are very good in every way."

"WILD TALK"

In reference to the relations between Japan and America, Mr. Debuichi stated that there was a lot of wild talk and nonsense, but actually the relations between the two countries were really excellent. "America and Japan are bound by very good trade and cultural relations. As in the case of Australia, the trade of America is complementary rather than competitive with regard to Japan. I honestly believe that the relations between the two countries are splendid. If there are three large countries like Great Britain, America and Japan they should be able to co-operate, and I am sure that they will."

"Good business and goodwill, that is my motto," declared the Ambassador. He applied this statement when asked to comment on the relations of the Philippines and Japan.

It was in 1909 that Mr. Debuichi last visited Hongkong, while he was going to Germany on a visit. "There is certainly a wonderful difference and I notice improvements in every direction," he stated.

Mr. Debuichi will continue on the President Wilson to Manila, and wait there for a few days until the Kamo Maru arrives on her way to Sydney.

SHAI EXCHANGE MARKET

RUMOUR OF BRITISH LOAN DISCOUNTED

Shanghai, July 22.

The foreign exchange market is very firm here this morning although little interest is being shown by traders. The speculative position is overbought and speculators are getting anxious as rumours are rife of pending British action following the visit of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross.

There are persistent reports of an impending sterling loan which, however, are heavily discounted. The market was easier at 10.45 a.m. Speculators are buying gold bars. A generally uneasy undertone persists.

The foreign exchange market was easier later. Best informed circles say that they look for a drop in the local market. The speculative position being overbought is causing a definite inclination downward.

Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome, and former Secretary General of the League of Nations, who may confer with Signor Mussolini and the French Ambassador to Italy on the Abyssinian crisis.

Halliburton Elephant Weakening

TIES UP TRAFFIC ON ALPINE PASS

ONLY BRIBES BUDGE IT

Berne, July 21.

Mr. Richard Halliburton's trans-Alpine pilgrimage on the back of an elephant is causing much amusement to the mountain villagers and exasperation amongst the motorists who are held up behind him.

The novelist, who is endeavouring to capture something of the feeling which may have been experienced by the mighty Hannibal, is meeting with difficulties, just as the Carthaginian did. His elephant is tired and has to be coaxed along with lumps of sugar. Mr. Halliburton's expedition differs in this as well as other details from Hannibal's adventure. Hannibal used salt to split the rocks.

Furthermore, whereas Hannibal was marching to meet the Romans, Mr. Halliburton's enemies are behind him. They are motorists, held up by the slowly ambling pachyderm.

Over 500 spectators followed Mr. Halliburton's elephant up the last steep mile and a half to the summit of St. Bernard Pass. The animal was extremely tired after its long climb, and kept stopping. A great stream of motor traffic stretched behind, suiting its pace to the elephant's.

The elephant is finding the rarified air trying. Its condition necessitates frequent halts and rests. Out of consideration for it the party will probably spend the night some way down on the Italian side of the pass.—Reuter.

EPIDEMICS SPREADING

Tsinan, July 22.

All Western Shantung is threatened with inundation owing to the simultaneous rise in the Yellow River and other waterways which have become swollen with the continuous rainfall.

The situation is aggravated by the collapse of the northern embankments of the Chaochow River and the Kiangsiang dykes.

URGENT APPEAL

Nanking, July 22.

Urgent appeals from the flooded districts of the Yangtse and Yellow Rivers for aid to prevent the spread of epidemics now prevalent there, are pouring in to the National Health Administration.—Reuter.

THOUSANDS PERISH

Tsinan, July 22.

Chinese reports state that as a result of torrential rains and cloudbursts, and the ensuing floods, thousands of persons have perished in and around Sichuan, Honan, near the Hupeh border.

More than twenty villages have been wiped out and over sixty square miles of country is under water.—Reuter.

The authorities estimate that public and private losses from the floods amount to about $200,000,000 already. The loss in the Han River district alone is estimated at $100,000,000.—Reuter.

DUE HERE IN FEW DAYS' TIME

Group Captain Scaroni, of the Italian Air Force, is expected to arrive in Hongkong on Wednesday or Thursday on the biggest plane ever to visit Hongkong en route to Nanchang on a goodwill tour to the Italian Aviation Mission.

His plane is an Alfa-Romeo "Savoia Marchetti" machine fitted with three engines and with seating accommodation for 30 passengers. Group Capt. Scaroni will be accompanied by Capt. Tendi and will be joined in Hongkong by Captain Drago, Air Attache at the Italian Embassy in China, who recently arrived from North China. It is anticipated that Group Captain Scaroni's stay in China will last two or three days.

CANADA-JAPAN TRADE STRIFE

Ottawa, July 21.
The Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. R. B. Bennett, to-day advised the Japanese Government that Canada considers the imposition of a fifty per cent. tax on Canadian goods is a violation of the equal treatment agreement which was guaranteed in the Anglo-Japanese agreement of 1911 and to which Canada became a party in 1913. Mr. Bennett said that in the event of the surtax being imposed Canada will be forced to retaliate by imposing a surtax of 33.1/3 per cent. ad valorem on all Japanese imports.

Geneva, July 21.

Inquiries have revealed that a violent Alpine storm was responsible for the loss of the lives of ten passengers and four of the crew of the big Dutch airliner which crashed when flying from Milan to Frankfurt-Am-Main yesterday.

According to the chief engineer of the Swiss Federal Aviation Department both engines of the machine, a Douglas monoplane, were in perfect order. No technical defect was to blame for the disaster.

The storm beat the machine down into a valley and the pilot appeared to be heading for a suitable landing-place. But the plane suddenly dived and crashed with terrible force among the trees.

The occupants were killed almost instantly.—Reuter.

BRITISH VICTIMS

Berne, July 21.

The Dutch airliner disaster is the third major air tragedy within a week.

The two British victims of this most recent crash were Mr. L. M. Nesbitt, a mining engineer who had recently travelled extensively in Abyssinia, and Commander Arthur Watts, a London newspaper artist.

The other passengers, all of whom were killed, were Dutch, with the exception of one German. The crew consisted of pilot, mechanic, radio operator and hostess.

CAUSE UNCERTAIN

The cause of the mishap is uncertain and was possibly due to lightning or to the failure of one or both the engines.

The liner was only 300 feet up when it fell like a stone. It was smashed to pieces but did not catch fire.

BIG LIQUOR REVENUE

SAVING OF MILLIONS

Washington, July 21.

The repeal of prohibition throughout the United States, and the ending of the immense cost of enforcement which annually drained the country of some $100,000,000 and cost numbers of lives as well, has now commenced to pay dividends to the nation. Nearly $600,000,000 annually is pouring into the Federal Treasury through the liquor trade, the Bureau of Internal Revenue reported to-day. This figure is for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The Bureau reported that beer and liquor drinkers contributed $311,021,772 in taxes. But there is another $25,000,000 collected in customs duties which is not taken into account here. The remainder of the revenue is made up in various ways, from sales taxes and licences, and so on.—United Press.

TELEPHONE 33067.SPAIN AND VATICANIMPROVEMENT IN
MONARCHISTS

Madrid, June 20.
Reports of steady progress in the modus vivendi negotiations between Spain and the Vatican and the manifest improvement in the once strained relations between the young Republic and the Holy See were greeted with open satisfaction by Catholic Republicans and those Spanish Catholics who place the Church above the desire for a monarchical restoration.

To impartial observers, the friendly attitude being manifested by the Vatican towards the Republic indicates the Vatican's belief in the stability of the republican regime in Spain.

Although the Monarchists have persistently appealed to the religious instincts of the great mass of Spaniards by charging religious persecution and pointing to the Church and convent burning of May, 1931, shortly after the establishment of the new Regime,
it is evident that the Vatican's policy of approval upon the Republic has proved an unexpected setback to the supporters of the former Monarchical regime.

To have the once outraged Holy See recognise the Republic's stability by negotiating a modus vivendi was unlooked for by the Royalists.

Although former Premier Manuel Azana once said that "Spain has ceased to be Catholic," the results of the November, 1933, elections, with the overwhelming victory for the Catholic Right-Wing indicated that the religious sentiments were still strong. The greatest obstacle to the young Republic encountered in its 4-year career was the disturbed sentiments of a large mass of faithful Catholics, disturbed by the separation of the Church and State,
the dissolution of Church orders and the confiscation of their assets, and the substitution of laic for religious teaching.

SENTIMENTS DISREGARDED

During the first two years of the Republic, the Left Wing governments persisted in disregarding the religious sentiments which gave rise to the powerful Right Wing reaction. The triumph of the Rights paved the way for smoothing out the relations with the Vatican. However, as long as there was no revision of Article 26 of the Constitution, a concordat was impossible so the Spanish Government sought the next best thing, a modus vivendi.

In charge of the negotiations
since their initiation is Leandro Pita Romero, a young Galician politician who proved himself an able diplomat.

Behind the negotiations on the Spanish side of the picture was the quiet figure of President Niceto Alcala Zamora, an ardent Catholic, who believed the Republic was committing an error as long as it did not stabilise its relations with the Vatican. In recent meetings with the Cabinet, he reviewed his experience during the first three years of his 6-year mandate as President, and pointed out that the isolation of thousands of Spaniards by Article 26 of the Constitution would inevitably require its revision even though the Church and the State would have to continue separated.

This spiritual pacification, now underway in the negotiations, has had its repercussions in the Vatican's attitude toward the Spanish Royalists. Whereas an open air audience was scheduled for them in Vatican City on the occasion of the marriage of former Princess Beatrice to the Prince of Torlonia, the Pope limited himself to blessing them from behind a closed window. Inspired statements from the Vatican have criticised the Royalists for their zeal in working

JOAN OF
TO LIGHT

Beaurevoir, France, June 14.
New facts about Joan of Arc will be brought to light through excavations in and about the Chateau de Beaurevoir. The research work is being made under the direction of Mons. Jean Plateau, priest and archeologist, who is considered the greatest authority on that subject in France to-day.

One of his finds is a head in stone of a little girl with hair cropped short as it is believed that Joan wore hers. It is not established yet whether or not this is a long lost bust of the French heroine, but Plateau hopes to uncover much new material about the French saint.

Joan of Arc was imprisoned in this chateau in 1430 and in trying to escape she jumped from one of the towers. Her enemies trumped up the charge of "attempted suicide" which swayed the judge against her although it was perfectly obvious that she had no intention of killing herself, but was merely trying to escape.

Plateau has delved 30 to 50 feet below the soil and has found the remains of three towers, part of a staircase, a vaulted roof, a portion of the drawbridge and remnants of the ramparts. When the research is finished, it is planned to reconstruct the Beaurevoir chateau as it was in 1430 and turn it into a Joan of Arc museum. It is hoped that this will be completed for the national holiday of Joan of Arc in 1936.—United Press.

CONTROL OF CRIMERESEARCH BY
THE HOMEBY TEG C. GRONDAHL
United Press Staff Correspondent

Berkeley, Calif., June 14.
The scientist and the home must step in to control crime where police and the courts have failed.
This was the conclusion recently announced by research agencies at the University of California in collaboration with the Bureau of Research and Guidance of the Berkeley school department.

After years of study the research agencies came to the conclusion that control of conditions which produce the gangster, the racketeer, the pervert and all other chronic criminal types, must be assumed by science and
by the home.

The real cradles of crime, it was found, is the maladjusted home. That home, the scholars concluded, could be either in the slums or the suburbs.

The research revealed that chronic delinquency had not been checked or cured in the vast majority of cases where it had not been attacked in the home or in the school, and that social agencies set up for the control and punishment of the criminal may prove as well as prevent crime.

Fidings in possession of the bureau and the University prove decisively that unless criminal tendencies are checked at the start, there is little hope.

An early delinquent, it was reported, will "bog down" deeper into crime despite all restraint unless he is taken in hand when his destructive behaviour first becomes apparent.

An amazing sidelight on the problem which the bureau studied was that of supposedly non-delinquent children who later turned into criminal paths.

A concurrent study by Nathan Bodin, graduate student of the University, showed that 92.5 per cent of a group of Berkeley "problem" children in school some nine years ago have since become delinquents and criminals.

Lack of mentality is not always a factor, the studies revealed.
The highly intelligent girl who is unduly restricted by parents or other adults, may develop into a vicious and puzzling criminal as the criminally inclined half-wit.

That the home holds the real solution of the crime problem was pointed out by the studies in emphasizing that the Berkeley school department has no record of a serious delinquency case developing from a normal and wholesome home.

On the other hand, the mal-adjusted home and improper and misguided adult restraint and adult misunderstanding breed virtually all delinquency and crime,
the researchers said.

A study of three separate groups of children, 100 to a group, from all types of Berkeley public schools, revealing some interesting and challenging results.

One group was definitely delinquent, but this delinquency was checked or stopped to a marked degree by scientific treatment and home co-operation.

The second group, with like problems had been allowed to go unchecked. Virtually all showed increasing and serious delinquency
as the study progressed.

The third group, with no apparent behaviour problems, developed a high percentage of delinquency within three years.

A fourth study of 116, checked from records covering from five to 15 years, showed the high figure of 92 per cent. developing into chronic criminals who had perpetrated everything from petty theft to homicide.

WINDERMERE A REAL CAMP

Striking while the iron is hot is a characteristic of the West that has gained the admiration of the rest of Canada. And so there is little surprise in the announcement that the Board of Trade at Invermere, B.C., has leased the bungalow camp at beautiful Lake Windermere for this summer, in anticipation of increased tourist traffic to the Canadian Rockies, which has been generally forecast in Europe, the Orient, and the United States.

The camp, which is being taken over by small but energetic Invermere, is one of the most delightfully situated in the Canadian Rockies. Built originally by the Canadian Pacific Railway, this camp has been successfully operated for the past several years as a private camp for girls. In the centre of an ideal vacation district, it is easily reached by main mountain highways. The famous Banff-Windermere road leads to it, a good alternative route being through the mountains from Cranbrook. The lake averages about 58 degrees in the summer and is ideal for swimming and boating. Excellent trout fishing can be had in several creeks and smaller lakes near by and the lake itself has landlocked salmon of considerable size. Within a day's ride is the celebrated Lake of the Hanging Glaciers, with six spectacular glaciers all concentrating in one moraine with an ice wall several hundred feet high which drops a continual succession of small icebergs into the lake.

A colony of squeaking white rats in tiny cages demonstrated to the gathering of scientists a development of thymus gland extract, from the sweetbreads of calves, which speeds growth and maturity to an unprecedented degree. The extract is being tried on humans.

GOOD OLD DAYS RECALLED

Chicago, June 14. The $4,000,000 mansion where Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick—known as "the richest woman in the world"—reigned as the arbiter of Chicago society and entertained queens and diplomats may be turned into a luxurious lunchroom.

Edward L. Brashers, appointed receiver for the property, has announced that the home of John D. Rockefeller's daughter, who died in 1922, is a "white elephant" and that, with all its onetime splendour, it's good for nothing more than a glorified eating place.

The home, encircled by a high, ornate iron fence, was the centre of the city's society for 35 years. Queen Marie was entertained there, as were the Prince of Wales and Crown Prince William of Sweden.

Dinner guests ate from the same service used by Napoleon and brought from the island of St. Helena by General Montholon, friend of the Emperor in the last days of his exile. The furnishings, now gone with the auctioneer's hammer, were exquisite and costly. One rug alone, a rare old Persian that belonged to a Shah, cost $185,000.

The mansion, built a half century ago by the socially-minded Joseph Thatcher and titled of lavish affairs during the World Columbian Exposition in 1893, might not have reached its ignominious end if Mrs. Rockefeller had carried out plans which she announced seven years before her death.

She engaged architects to draw up plans for a million dollar museum on the spot, a grandiose castle-like affair housing objects d'art.

But her interest was sidetracked to a plan to develop great subdivision tracts where the children of the less wealthy families might grow up amid flowers and trees. She organised the Edith Rockefeller Trust and into it went a large part of her $50,000,000 fortune.

The scheme collapsed when the depression set in in 1929 and the reigning queen of society, who had not spent a night away from her feudal home in 11 years, moved to a hotel suite. She said she had had heavy financial setbacks.

FOOD POISONING

CUTTLEFISH BELIEVED TO BE THE CAUSE

After finishing their evening meal on Friday last, three Chinese, Ng Lam-kee, Ng Yin and Ng Yiu suddenly fell ill and were taken to the Kowloon Hospital where it was found they were suffering from food-poisoning.

According to one of the men, they bought a cuttlefish a few months ago, and on Friday they cooked some of it with the melon they usually eat with their meal.

It is believed the fish was responsible for their sudden illness. The three men are reported to be recovering.

the old mansion was kept in momentary readiness for his return—even after his marriage and divorce from Ganna Walska, the opera singer.

The home was referred to among society folk simply as "1880" its street number, and an invitation to a seven o'clock dinner there meant seven o'clock; if one arrived at 7.10 he missed soup—and perhaps the fish.

Now the home of society's queen—democracy was only a word to her—may become a beachside eating place with service at all hours.

experiments, reported that rats treated with the extract reproduced in one-eighteenth of normal time and lived longer than others of their species.

Rats in his cages have attained six days after birth the physical and mental development of other rats at the end of 72 days. Their eyes opened in 36 hours, contrasted with the normal period of 16 days and they reached maturity in four days.

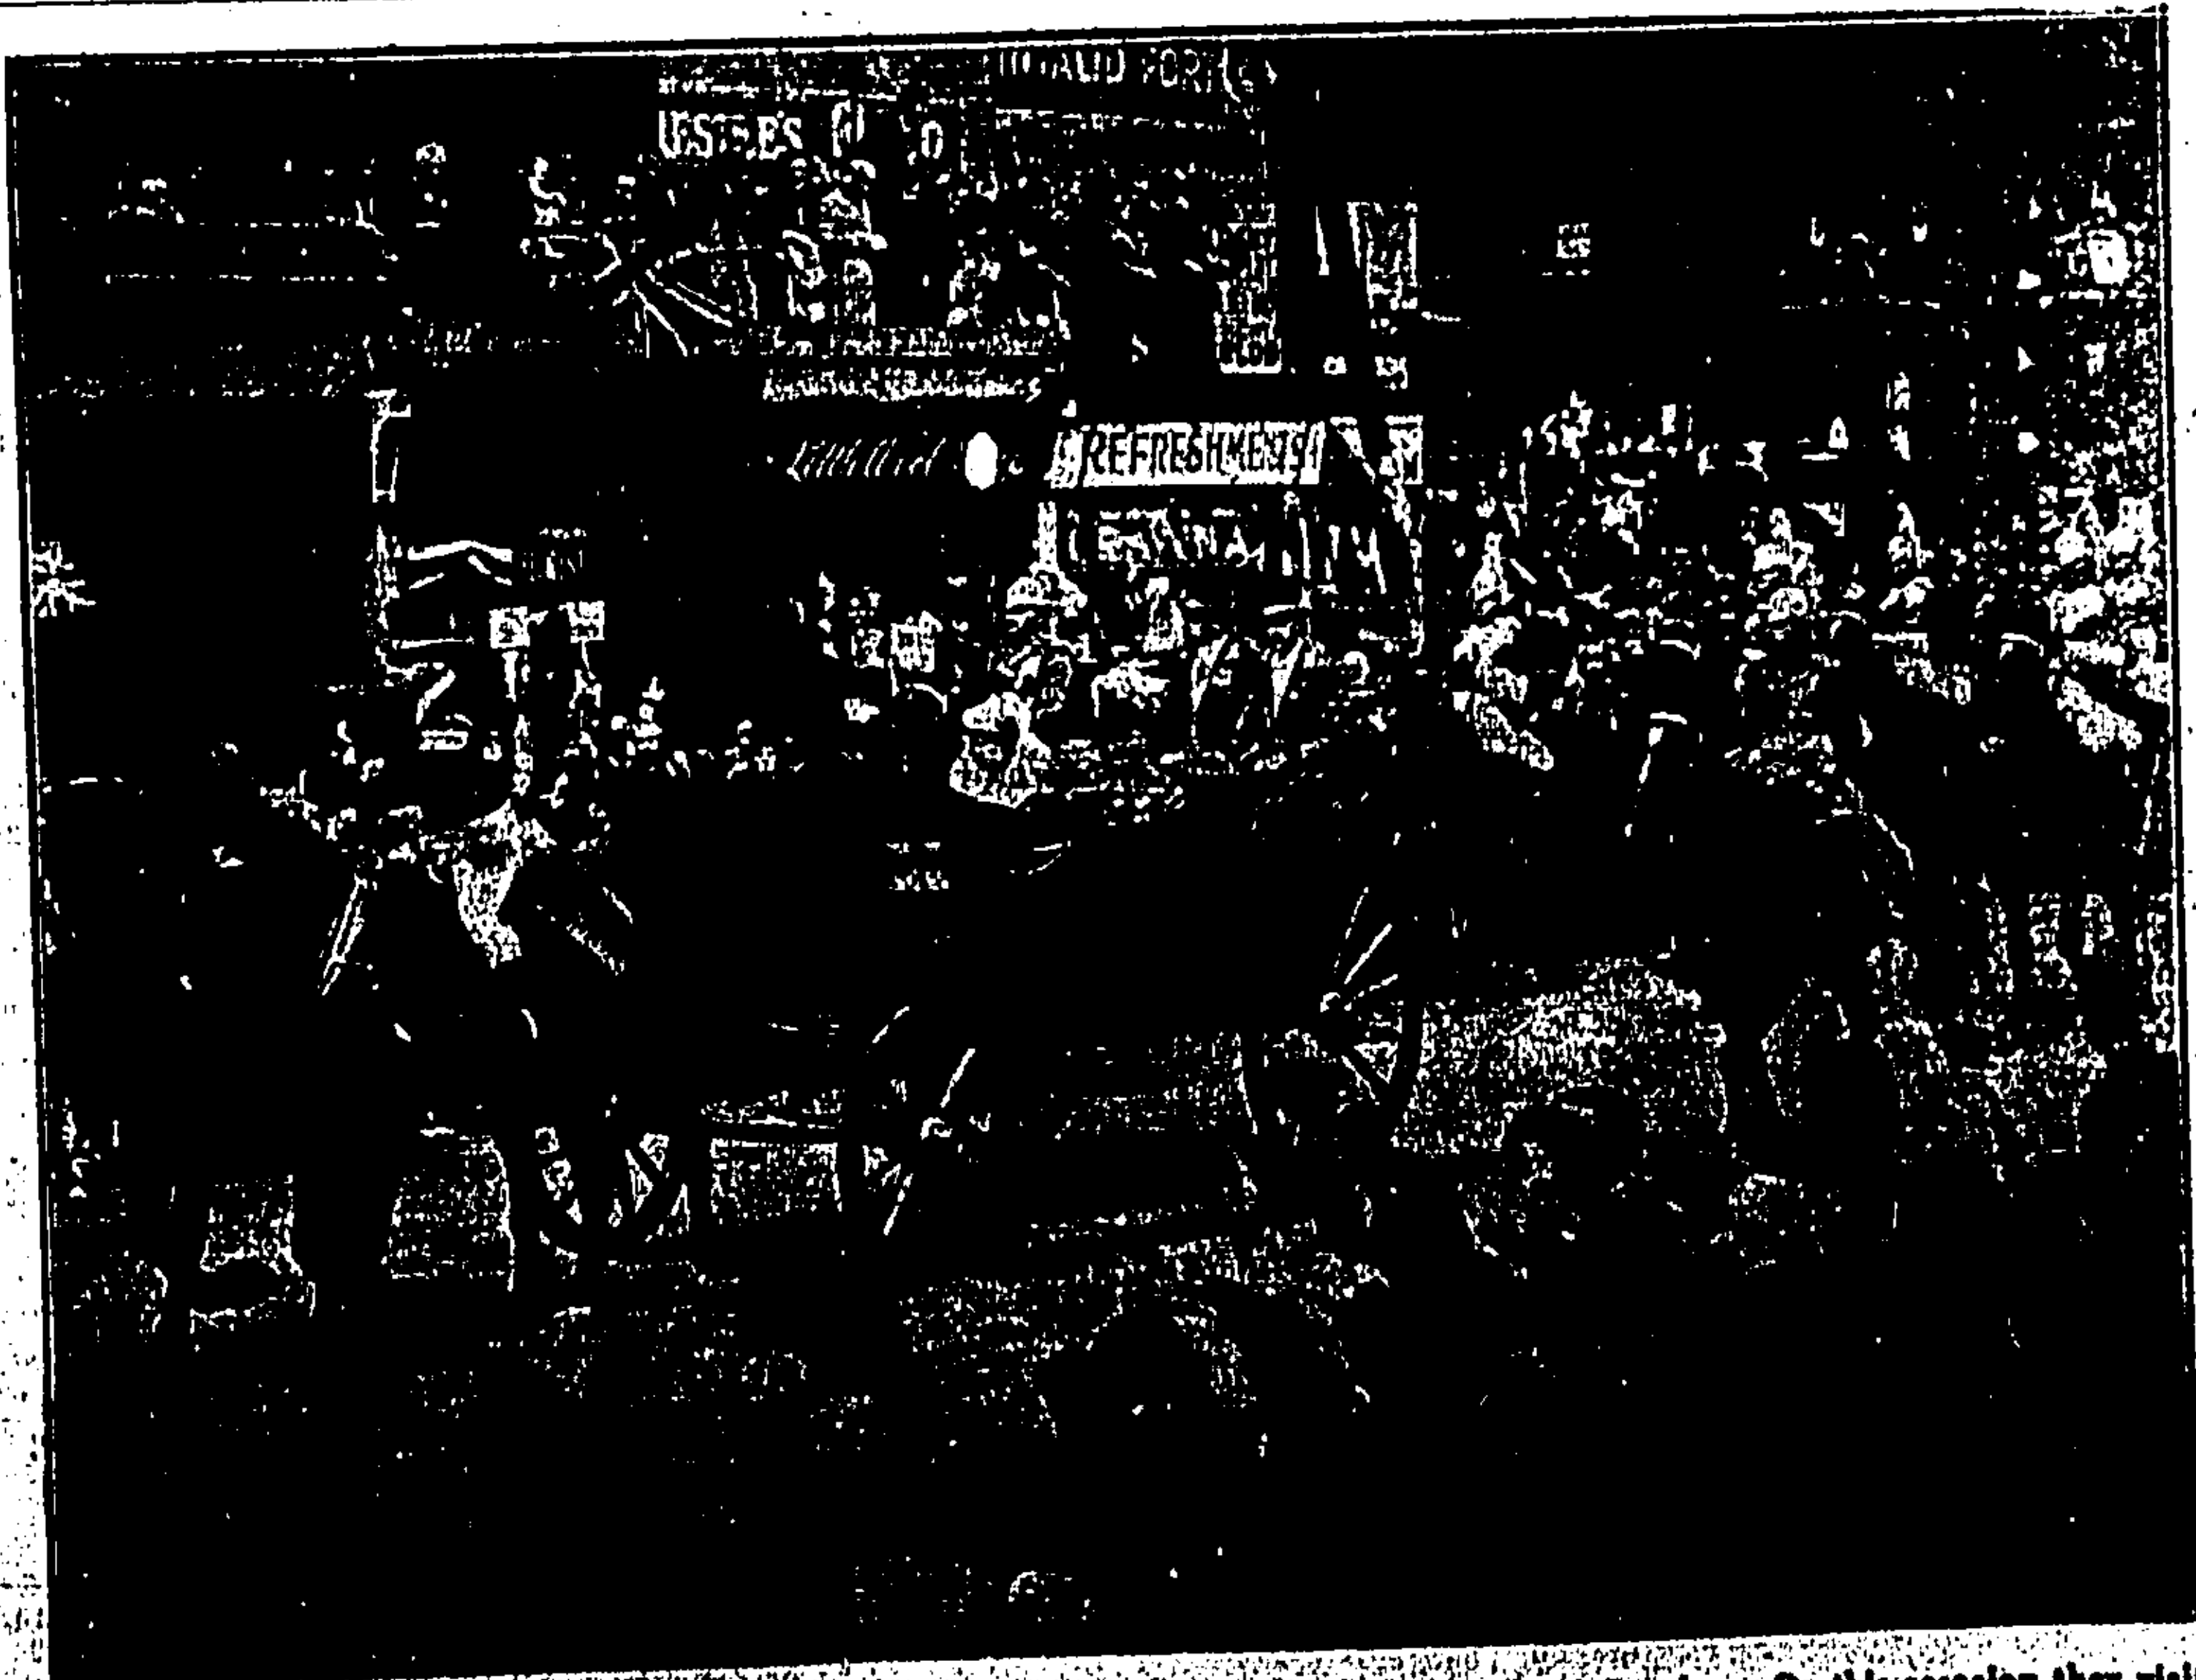

The first generation of animals that Dr. Rowntree treated with the extract is 27 months old, equivalent to 76 years in human life. Rats normally live about 24 months.

Dr. Rowntree refused to comment on the possible effect of administration of thymus extract to his human "Guinea Pigs." The experiment has not progressed to a point where conclusions can be drawn, he said. He is being assisted in his work by Drs. Jefferson H. Clark and Arthur Steinberg, Philadelphia, and A. M. Hanson, Fairbault, Minn.

Dr. Martin G. Vorhaus of New York reported successful treatment of 92 of 100 neuritis sufferers by oral administration of a newly isolated crystalline form of vitamin B-1 the "nerve" vitamin. The crystal is so potent that a granule, the size of a pinhead, is equal in vitamin content to 100 cakes of yeast.

The cancer preventive, developed by Dr. J. R. Davidson of Winnipeg, Canada, is a highly concentrated diet of vitamin E, found particularly in the wheat germ.

Dr. Davidson applied a cancer irritant to 12 white mice. Six of the rodents were fed a diet high in vitamin E, the other six normally. All of the six on normal diet contracted cancer and died. None of the others was affected.—United Press.

EDDYSTONE KILODYNE

FOR BATTERY OPERATION.

The EDDYSTONE 1935 Kilodyne is primarily a Short Wave Receiver and afterwards adapted for use on broadcast, unlike many sets in which the procedure is reversed and the short wave performance only a secondary consideration.

Prominent features of design are ease of operation, complete freedom from body capacity effects even on the shortest waves, no dead spots on any waveband and smooth and definite reaction everywhere. Economy of current consumption, and the fact that all parts are suitable for use under tropical conditions are points which will appeal to the overseas user. Four efficient valve stages give the set exceedingly long distance capabilities with freedom from interstage noise, outside static and electrical interference, which is most pronounced when the KILODYNE is compared with sets using a large number of valve stages, each of individually lower efficiency.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

DOCUMENT SIGNED IN BLOOD

SESSIONS TRIAL

When So Shing, alias So Pat-san, alias So Cheuk-king, age 32, was arraigned at the Criminal Sessions this morning on a charge of manslaughter, the Puisse Judge, Mr. Justice Lindsell, asked why the prisoner was not indicted for murder. Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, explained that after an incident at 157 Des Voeux Road Central, third floor, on the night of September 9, 1934, the accused and two others believed to have taken part in the assault on Wong Pat-kin alias Wong Cheuk-kin, could not be found. An inquest was held by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy subsequently and there the jury probably took a merciful verdict of manslaughter against the accused and two confederates. Counsel agreed that there was a course of murder against the accused on the facts.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. M. K. Lo, of Messrs. Lo and Lo, appeared for the accused, who pleaded not guilty.

The following jury was empanelled to hear the case: Messrs. A. M. Larcino (foreman), Maurice Ching, Lei Kwan-chit, Chao Ping-sai, Wong Tin-nin, Chui Shik-sum, and A. M. Tye.

Mr. Fraser was instructed by Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor, for the Crown. At the outset, Mr. Fraser explained that he was suffering from a cold and if the jury could not hear him they were immediately to let his Lordship know. The members of the Court were stated to be rather bad, he mentioned.

LAW EXPLAINED

Mr. Fraser then dealt with the lay-out of the premises and went on to explain if one frightened a man to jump from a verandah and the man was killed, one would be answerable for the consequences. The law as to homicide applied to such a case just as if a person who threatened a man who jumped over the verandah had struck the actual blow and caused death.

Mr. Fraser said the premises at 157 Des Voeux Road Central, third floor, were occupied by the accused who lived with his two children and an uncle who looked after the children. There were also other servants. The accused was living apart from his wife and he would ask the jury to be rather careful on this point. The accused blamed the deceased man for this separation and so strongly did he feel about it that wrote it down.

AN OBJECTION

Mr. Jenkin objected to the document going in, as it was inadmissible.

Mr. Fraser said he had based his case very largely on the document. It had been proved to be in the accused's writing.

His Lordship: Mr. Jenkin, on what grounds do you object?

Mr. Jenkin replied that there were two grounds. Firstly, the man was being charged with manslaughter, and not murder. It being a charge of manslaughter, the state of the man's mind was wholly immaterial. Secondly, it was entirely contrary to the Crown case. The evidence tended to show that the state of mind was motivated by entirely different circumstances.

Replying, Mr. Fraser said he placed great importance on the document.

Mr. Fraser, continuing, said the deceased coming to the floor was a heaven-sent opportunity to the accused who had a very strong motive for doing something to him. The suggestion was that the quarrel was picked by the accused against the deceased and that words were used to the effect that deceased had libelled accused's firm and had published the libel in newspapers and harmed him. Accused himself had done no business for a long time.

The Crown was saying that the quarrel was purposely picked on by the accused; a false allegation had been made by the accused to get his own back on the deceased. The accused, it was alleged, used two nails on the deceased and there was a concerted attack by three persons which amounted to no less than a certain form of torture. The deceased jumped over the verandah to escape an assault by the accused and two other men. The deceased must have had reasonable apprehension of violence.

His Lordship thought the document was admissible, as it showed that the person might be likely to assault the deceased.

SIGNED IN BLOOD

Mr. Fraser, continuing, said the document was written by the accused and signed with his blood. It was kept in a safe and found by the police. Dated August 26, 1934, the document contained the wording that "Wong Pat-kin is my great enemy," and that after accused's separation from his wife, his mind had been greatly disturbed, so he wrote it in order that his children, when they grew up, might learn the cause of their parents' separation.

Mr. Fraser said that on the night of September 9 about ten people visited the floor and with the accused they had dinner. Some wine was drunk. Wong Pat-kin arrived shortly after 8 p.m. and when some of the guests whom the accused had been entertaining had left, the accused called Wong into a little room.

Wong did not know that the accused had found out about his (Wong's) relationship with the

RUMOURS OF HEAVY DUTY ON IMPORTS

London, July 20.
Rumours are current in the City that the Government will be asked to impose a heavy import duty on pepper, thus enabling the Pepper Pool, which took up 20,000 tons during the pepper and shellac troubles, to dispose of its holdings. It is understood that the stock of the pool is at present 18,000 tons.

The new crop of pepper is now selling unprofitably for 4½d. per pound, compared to 9d. at which price the pool took over the stock. It is considered most unlikely that the Government will take action. It is pointed out that pepper is now most difficult to sell in London, which will probably result in new supplies being shipped elsewhere.

Many believe that the current unremunerative prices will lead producers to ask the Government to impose some form of restriction, as a sharp reduction in the output would enable the Pool's holdings to be liquidated more quickly, thus rendering a more economical price possible.

TWO TYPHOONS

The Manila Observatory, reporting at 9.40 a.m. to-day, states that there is a typhoon in about 124 Long., 26 Lat., moving N.W., and another in about 146 Long., 10 Lat., moving W.N.W.

accused's wife. Wong denied that he had libelled the firm. Wong was struck in the left eyebrow with two nails used as a dagger by the accused, the Crown alleged.

Two others, named So Ping and Chan Kin-luk, came into the fight with their fists. Accused's statement was that when Wong arrived he taxed him with the relations between him and his wife and told Wong to leave the floor and told Wong, realising that there was the intention of calling the police, ran out to escape arrest and jumped over the verandah.

It was obviously common ground, said Crown counsel, that Wong ran out to escape something. The accused admitted having bitten the deceased on the forearm, but in his statement in the Magistracy mentioned nothing about the nails. If the accused was guilty and there were three men assaulting Wong, the last thing in the world the accused wanted to do was to call the police. The assailants escaped by way of the roof, but before leaving took the keys of the floor. The police had to break in.

ACCUSED ARRESTED

On June 23 last, the accused voluntarily appeared at the Central Police Station and was arrested. He declined to make a statement in answer to the charge, as he was feeling ill at the time. He knew there was a warrant out for his arrest.

Mr. C. A. Grimes, Chief Draughtsman of the P.W.D. and Sergeant H. N. Moran, Police Photographer, gave formal evidence regarding plans of the (Continued on next column.)

PARITY IN ARMAMENTS

"The reason why limitation, disarmament or agreement in the air is vital is because of the swiftness of the stroke from the air. What we have to stop is that race in arms which can only end in bankruptcy and may end in war." Thus spoke Mr. Baldwin at a mass meeting held at the Albert Hall recently. In these words, he put his finger on the central point of the arms danger, and he also provided grounds for the contention that the British Government should take the initiative with a view to getting an agreement to end the arms race and to ensure parity at as low a figure as possible. In the same speech, Mr. Baldwin remarked that if there is to be collective security, common sense, common honesty, and common fairness demands that all should put an equal amount into the pool. That is a statement which should find general acceptance. But in a system of collective security, surely the measure of the equal contribution should be collectively determined. There cannot be any ground for each nation maintaining armaments at the same high level which it would seek if it were the single defender of its own security. It was on this ground that there was recently some criticism of the British decision to fix air parity at the French level, the critics asking why we should go up instead of down? Certainly it can be argued that if parity at the level of 1,500 planes will give security, so will parity at the level of 1,000 or 500 planes. And common sense suggests that, if agreement can be reached, parity at a low level is to be preferred to parity at a high level. If all the Great Powers stand for peace, as they declare, there ought really to be no question of a race in armaments. A system of collective security does not require high or increasing armaments, and the thought suggests itself that if nations can trust one another not to exceed a common figure based on a high level, they ought to be able to trust one another to abide loyally by an agreement fixing their strength at a lower figure. It is not to be doubted that Britain is anxious for a world armament agreement, and that she has with the greatest reluctance felt compelled to treble her Air Force. Had there been any prospect of

NOTES OF THE DAY*STRAIGHT TARIFF

The heart of the British farmer has been cheered by the clear and unqualified declaration of tariff policy which Mr. J. H. Thomas made in his survey of Dominion relations, says the Daily Mail. He stated what Mr. Baldwin announced in less definite terms some months ago, that "instead of a system of restrictions and embargoes, which leads to all manner of friction . . . the policy at which we are aiming and the agreement which we are striving to obtain is a tariff with a substantial preference to the Dominions." We welcome that statement the more because, as our readers well know, for years the Daily Mail has called for a policy of straight tariffs of the kind suggested by Mr. Thomas, with ample preference to the Dominions, in place of the present confused complex of quotas, restrictions, levies, subsidies, and marketing boards. The straight tariff alone can straighten out the awkward tangle of the milk and beef and bacon schemes, and thus secure the solvency and stability of British agriculture.

DELAY UNAVOIDABLE

There must, unfortunately, be delay before the new policy can be applied energetically. The Argentine agreement prohibits further taxation of Argentine meat imports until November of next year, and the Danish agreement prevents limitation of Danish bacon imports till June 1936. But when the straight tariff is put into effect, let the Government make sure that there is no nonsense about it—that it is sufficiently high to give our farmers efficient protection and the Dominions generous preferences. The Empire must come before foreign interests. It offers an expanding market for our exports, whereas the foreign market is stationary or contracting. The first principle in framing the tariff must be to encourage to the utmost British agriculture to grow more food at home, and thus at once to provide healthy employment for British labour and insurance against the risk of starvation in war. One of the earliest measures of Mr. Baldwin's new Government should be, in accordance with this policy, of guarantee the continuance of the beet subsidy, since official experts have declared the growth of that crop to be "essential to intensive cultivation."

ACCEPTABLE THEORY

If, as the Daily Mail believes, the heart of the "home" farmer has been cheered by Mr. Thomas' definition of the tariff policy, it is altogether likely that there will be an equally happy reaction in the Dominions. Unquestionably they have benefited, and will benefit still further, from Great Britain's preferential treatment of their raw products. Their wheat and meat, minerals and fruits, and all the countless products that go to make their revenue in pounds sterling are gaining a more and more important place in the markets of the United Kingdom. The theory of preference in tariffs is most acceptable to these Dominions, obviously. At the same time the United Kingdom cannot afford to relinquish its prestige in other than Empire markets for the sake of the Dominion producer. Britain's customers are scattered all over the globe. Not for a moment do we wish to discount the advantages of a solid system of Empire barter, adequately protected, but at the same time it would be a serious loss to the British manufacturer if, in pursuit of a leak-proof Empire preference scheme, the great industries were to sacrifice their still substantial trade in all other than spheres of British control. Empire trade should be encouraged to the very limit, and if the British industrialist were not faced with serious competition from foreign producers in the Dominions themselves, and even in Britain, we would be more ready to accept the "Empire first" policy championed by the Daily Mail.

an immediate understanding embracing all the principal Powers, the high parity would not have been decided upon. It is the absence of that prospect which has necessitated prompt action, in view of the danger of a swift threat from the air, to which Mr. Baldwin recently alluded. On general principles, however, Britain stands by her desire for world disarmament, and whatever else may be said about the recently-concluded naval agreement with Germany, there is good reason to believe that the Government regarded it as a step towards the end in view.

MUSSOLINI AND ABYSSINIA

By G. WARD PRICE

LAST April the British Government took part in a League of Nations vote of censure on Germany for rearmament.

Now, only two months later, the same Government has negotiated a naval agreement which settles how Germany is to do it.

League resolutions leave unaltered the necessity for facing facts.

Next August another choice between fact and theory will have to be made.

Mr. Anthony Eden, the newly appointed British Cabinet Minister for League Affairs, has already played a prominent part in the efforts of that body to interfere with Italian policy towards Abyssinia.

If these efforts are renewed when the present period of "arbitration" ends in foredoomed failure, Italy will leave the League, as Japan left it in consequence of similar attempts to obstruct her in Manchukuo.

Highly disciplined and energetically led nations like the Japanese, Germans, and Italians will not permit third parties to meddle with their vital patriotic aims, any more than this country would have allowed it when she was building up her own Empire. It is not yet forty years since war between Britain and France was only averted by the withdrawal of the French expedition which had occupied Fashoda, on the Upper Nile, and so threatened to interfere with our occupation of the Sudan.

Italian feeling with regard to Abyssinia is as little appreciated in this country as our attitude in the Fashoda affair was understood on the Continent.

I have had better opportunities than most people of becoming acquainted with it. In Rome recently I had an hour's private conversation with Signor Mussolini which mainly dealt with the Abyssinian question. Similar talks in each of the thirteen years since he came to power have convinced me of the sincerity and frankness with which he speaks on such occasions.

Italy has two aims in East Africa, to which many counterparts can be found in our own history. The first is to protect what she has got; the second is to secure new territory for over-seas settlement.

Eritrea and Somaliland may appear to us insignificant possessions, but they make up one half of Italy's Colonial Empire. They are narrow strips of territory, 3,000 miles from Italian ports, and each of them with a long and vulnerable land frontier bordering on the most powerful and warlike country in Africa, which can put into the field 500,000 well-armed men.

If war were to break out in Europe, those little Italian Colonies

would be cut off. Italy could send them no reinforcements or supplies, for the Mediterranean would be closed by enemy submarines. What more likely than that the Abyssinian tribesmen, who for years have been raiding on the frontier, would take the opportunity to swoop down upon the isolated Italian garrisons? And what greater ignominy for the Fascist regime than to lose Colonies founded by the democratic Governments which it displaced?

Mussolini's immediate aim, therefore, is to put Eritrea and Italian Somaliland in a position to look after themselves, without support from home. For this purpose an army of 100,000 white troops and 200,000 native auxiliaries is being created there, with arrangements for their supplies to be drawn from sources beyond the Red Sea.

That is the first of Italy's aims in East Africa. The second is to secure ultimately for Italian settlement some of the lofty Abyssinian plateau with its bracing, temperate climate and fertile soil. Italy, whose area is about half the size of France, has 2,000,000 more inhabitants. Only by hard work and a low standard of living can the Italian people exist in its cramped confines. Emigration is stopped by foreign restrictions. The territory in Asia Minor promised by the Allies during the war was never conquered. It is natural, therefore, that Italy should look for new outlets in Abyssinia, a country so backward and brutal that the British Government fourteen years ago protested against its admission to the League of Nations.

As far back as 1906 Britain, France, and Italy came to an agreement which contemplated the partition of Abyssinia, between them into spheres of influence. Almost at the same time Britain and France made a similar arrangement by which Britain, in return for a free hand in Egypt, recognised the right of the French Government to penetrate Morocco. What France did in Morocco Italy now wants to do in Abyssinia.

These Italian ambitions in Abyssinia do not clash with any interests of ours or of the French. On the contrary, the unruly chieftains of the Abyssinian frontier-districts may some day become as aggressive against us in the Sudan as they have shown themselves to the Italians in Somaliland. By close administration Mussolini has given proofs of the benefits that his rule would bring to Abyssinia. The genius of the Head of the Italian Government, which has transformed of his own country, deserves a wider field. By opposing its extension to one of the last and most backward of independent native States we should be hindering the progress of civilisation.

The Very Idea!*NEW POLICE FORCE
Insidious Propaganda Is Having Its Effect

By Supl. Edward Kelly

MR. Kelly, who has been reading all the correspondence in a morning contemporary regarding film censorship, agrees with the correspondent who says that there's not enough censoring in Hongkong.

The dreadful influence of certain types of films on children is already well known, Mr. Kelly avers. But what, he asks, of the influence of another and more insidious type of film on the adult population?

"Bring our censors to their senses!" is Mr. Kelly's motto.

A pernicious American system of propaganda threatens to rock our Police Force to its very foundation.

And when you rock a police force to its foundation, it's no mean feat.

We refer, of course, to the number of pictures that have been screened lately, depicting the work of the American police forces—forces.

This insidious propaganda is already having its effect.

Since "Manhattan Melodrama" was screened a movement has been started in Hongkong to Americanise the Colony's Force.

Any day now the riot squad will be equipped with sirens, while dashboard radio sets will whisper, in the modulated voices employed by all Hongkong police sergeants, the magic words, "Calling all Cars!"

We went up to Police Headquarters yesterday to interview Mr. Burlingham on the subject, but he was too busy counting the cigars and bowler hats that will be issued to Americanised Hongkong plain clothes detectives to see us.

However, with our usual imagination, we can depict for our public the incidents that will occur in the life of a young Hongkong policeman when the new scheme comes into operation.

There will, of course, have to be the periodical raids on the dreadful speakies and night clubs that infest this fair Colony.

We foresee the European Y.M.C.A. and Women's International Club as the first joints to be raided. In the case of the former, a dozen screaming police cars will tear down Salisbury Road. Axes will be employed by the police to gain admittance to the Y.M.C.A., and the residents will be suddenly surprised with the evidence of guilt in front of them. The bottles of Formazone, the draughts and the chess-boards and plug-nug tables will be taken by the police as exhibits.

Mr. Ingram will probably barricade himself in his office with the other Y.M.C.A. gangsters and shoot it out with the raiders.

Radio listeners, by tuning in to the police station's wave-length, will hear juicy flashes of information. Such as—

"Calling all Cars! Calling all Cars! Public Enemy No. 1 just entered the Dairy Farm speakies in Queen's Road. Bring him in!"

Then, of course, the cars will tear down to Queen's Road and will rush in and arrest us, just as we were gulping down the last of our Chocolate Malted Milk.

"Stick 'em up, Kelly!" the sergeant will say.

"Say, bo, we'll reply. 'You ain't got a thing on us. We've got an alibi.'"

"Give him the works, Joe," one of the dicks will say.

After they have given us the works then we rejoin their cars and wait for the next message.

"Calling all cars! Calling all cars! (We're beginning to like this!)" the loud speaker will exclaim, "A woman is being murdered on the second floor of the Gloucester."

So the cars will proceed to the Gloucester, and the Johns will use their axes again to break down the door of ZBW's studio. Accidents like that are always liable to happen, however, especially with some of our Hongkong singers.

Naturally, Mr. Burlingham will have to see that ROMANCE is introduced into the Hongkong police force. Perhaps arrangements can be made for some of the Peak lasses to co-operate in this matter.

All that is necessary is for them to be arrested and put in Victoria Gaol—that is, penitentiary, on a murder charge. The Sergeant-who-fell-in-love-with-her-when-he-arrested-her-but-always-believed-in-her-innocence-will move heaven-or-falling-heaven, the Peak-and-earth to find the guilty person, who will be discovered just as the

STRONG CRAIGENGOWER FOUR ELIMINATED

CLUB DE RECREIO COMBINATION IN SEMI-FINAL ROUND

WINNERS SHOW BETTER FORM IN AN EXCITING CONTEST

(By "Sagax")

When two of the strongest lawn bowls rinks in the Colony are matched against each other there is every justification to anticipate a match of the highest standard but the bowls in the quarter-final of the Open Rinks Championship on the Kowloon Bowling Green Club yesterday afternoon between the strongest quartettes from the Craigengower C. C. and the Club de Recreio, the two leading Clubs in the Colony, was not as high as many had expected and but for the brilliance of U. M. Omar, of the Happy Valley four, the Portuguese players would have given their opponents such a severe trouncing that the match would have been entirely without interest.

However, although the other members of the Craigengower team were out-played on the great majority of the heads, Omar revealed his very best form and literally carried the rink throughout the match. He was the outstanding player and although his rink suffered defeat by 18 shots to 13 and he was not able to save them from elimination, he scored a personal triumph and justified the confidence I placed in him last Saturday when I intimated that he would be one of the first choices for the position of skip against the Shanghai players in the forthcoming inter-rink matches.

On yesterday's performance the Craigengower skip will walk into one of the Hongkong rinks. He played a brand of bowls that was worthy of the best in the East and had it not been for him the match would have been entirely devoid of excitement. As it was there was always the thrill of awaiting Omar's turn to bowl to see exactly how he would extricate his side from difficult, and sometimes almost impossible, situations. It seemed that the more difficult the position the more brilliant was the Craigengower player, who, however, received a fair share of the luck and was thus able to bring off some spectacular shots which, on many another occasion, would have failed.

OMAR'S DIFFICULT TASK

There were indeed few heads on which the first three Craigengower players were able to lay the shot against their steeper and more consistent opponents, which thus left Omar with the task of having to save or draw shots on practically every head and he was never once allowed to relax. His was a glorious failure.

In comparison C. G. Silva was only fair, although he brought off some particularly good shots. He was given little to do but was never as reliable as he was in the Pair match when he and F. X. M. da Silva eliminated R. F. Luz and H. Beer. Had he not received such excellent support from his No. 3, F. X. M. da Silva, and his lead, J. E. Noronha, the game might easily have gone in the other direction.

The Craigengower rink consisted of J. Cavanagh, B. W. Bradbury, H. Beer and U. M. Omar, while the Club de Recreio quartette comprised J. E. Noronha, C. E. Marques, F. X. M. da Silva and C. G. Silva. Noronha was an ideal lead and, with the exception of a few heads,

Portuguese Score At Taikoo

IN OPEN RINKS CONTEST

The Club de Recreio rink, L. J. Silva, L. J. Xavier, F. V. V. Ribeiro and H. A. Alves (Skip) defeated the Craigengower quartette, A. A. Raznek, M. A. R. Souza, A. S. Gomes and D. Rumjahn (skip) by 27 shots to 21 in the quarter-final of the Open Rink Lawn Bowls Championship.

The winners led throughout, and the bowling was not up to the standard expected. All the eight players were below form, although Alves, who was the outstanding player, bowled some excellent woods. He was often called upon to save his side, and he was by far the better skip. Rumjahn was completely off form, and very erratic.

Souza was the hero player for the losers, but he lacked support. Gomes now and then showed splashes of accuracy but he was inconsistent. Raznek was weak in his deliveries in the first half of the match though he improved somewhat as the match progressed.

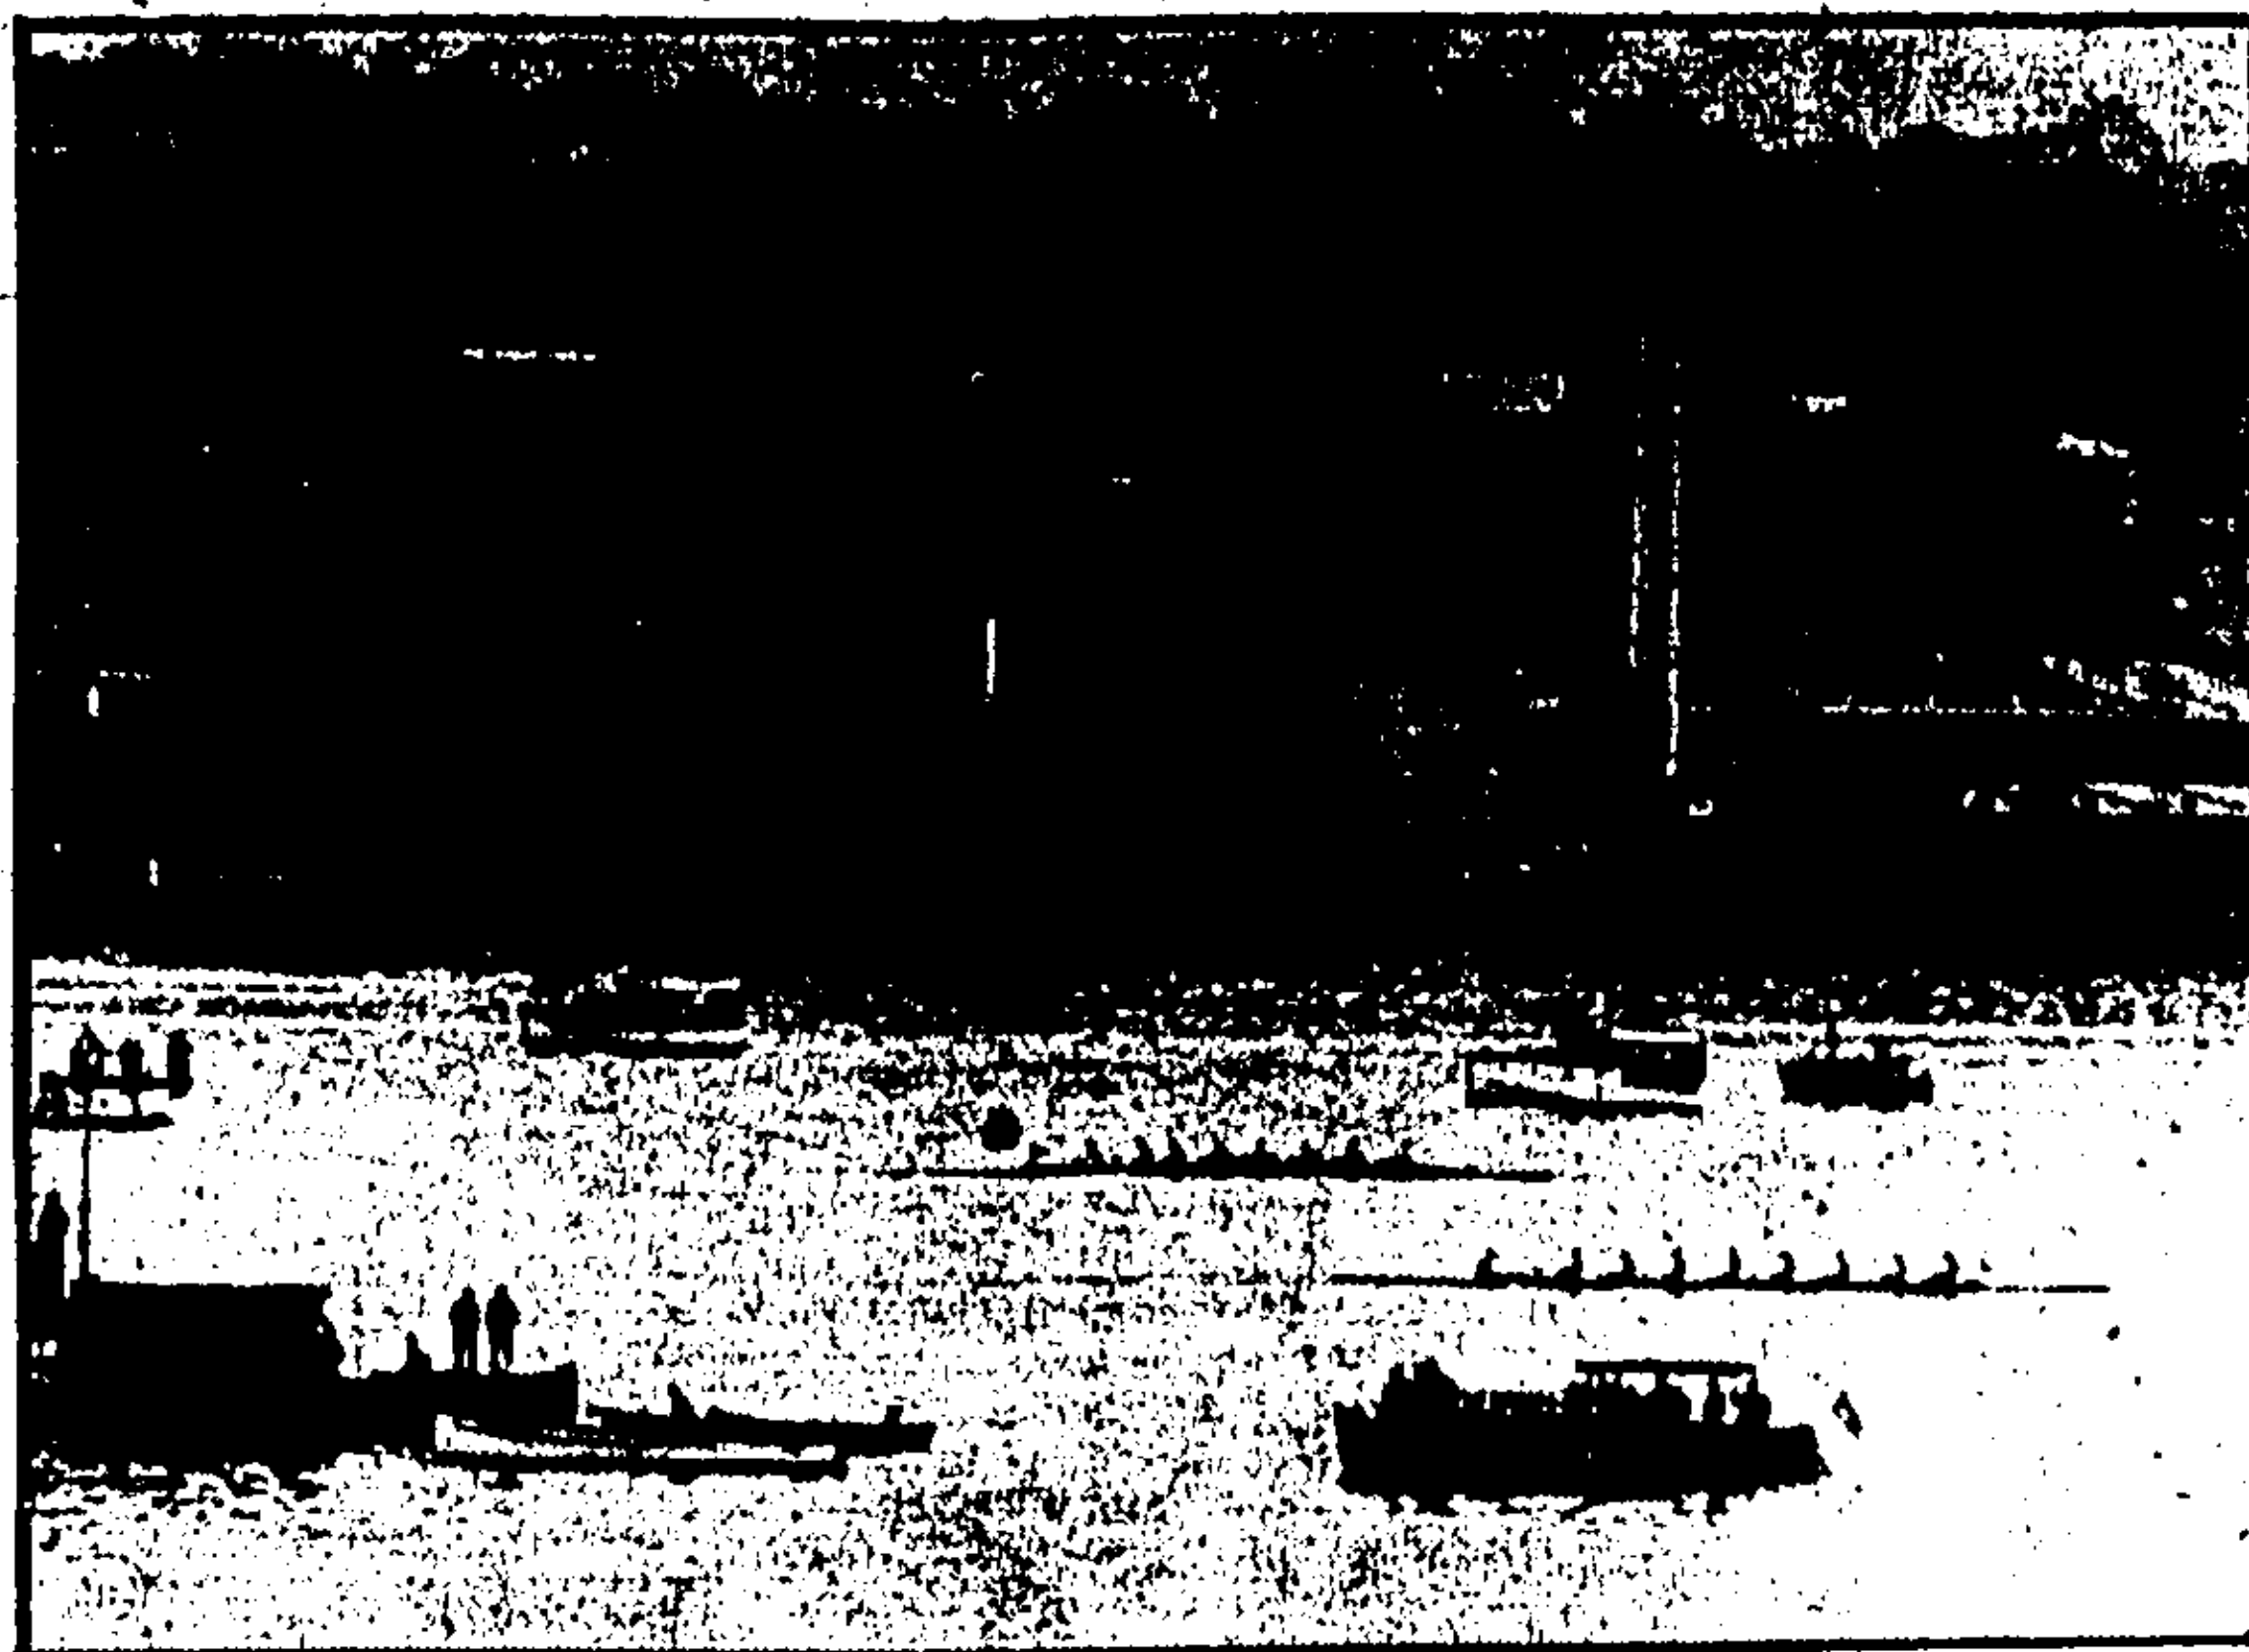

Silva, as No. 1 for the winners, was not at his best although he was better than his opposite number, Raznek. Xavier and Ribeiro contributed their share to the victory, but they were, on the whole, very impressive. After obtaining three shots in the first head, the losers were never in the picture again. At one stage the Portuguese rink was leading by 20 shots to 8 but from then onwards, the losers staged a splendid, though unavailing, recovery. They were only two shots down on the 19th head when the score was 23 to 21, but the Portuguese quartette soon re-asserted themselves and obtained a three and a one on the last two heads to win by 27 to 21.

A WORLD FIGURE IN TENNIS

SECRET OF HER SUCCESS

London, July 9.
Miss Katharine Stammers—
"Why will the papers always print my name as Kathleen or Katherine?" she once remarked—in the sports girl of the year.

By her crushing victory over Mrs. Helen Willis Moody in the Kent lawn tennis championships, she has suddenly become a world figure. Her name and the way in which she won were cable to all parts of the globe.

Millions of people are talking about her, the first young woman ever to score a love set against Mrs. Moody.

No flash in the pan, for Miss Stammers became British hard court champion at Bournemouth last month after beating three Wightman Cup players—Mrs. M. K. King, Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Peggy Scriven.

Now Kay, as her friends call her, is beginning to live down a three-year-old reputation for unreliability. Her youthful bursts of brilliance are coming too often for our selectors to ignore her any longer.

She has yet to get a place in the Wightman Cup team! Her real secret of success is an immense pluck—the pluck to hit and go on hitting as distinct from the pedestrian type of game, get-it-back-somewhat.

In court deportment she reminds one of Mrs. Willis Moody. Winning or losing she is always a sports-woman.

On current form she has as good a chance of winning at Wimbledon in the next fortnight as any other competitor—if only she can master what she herself calls that dithery feeling, and keep as inwardly composed as she always appears outwardly to be.

She had nothing in the way of reputation to lose against Mrs. Moody; but the following day she was over-zealous when opposing Miss Dorothy Round and it had the psychological effect of acting like a brake upon her will to win.

Miss Stammers, however, is only 21 and what would do her more good than anything would be the

JACK PETERSEN'S WIMBLEDON FUTURE

TO FIGHT IN OWN CLASS

(By Geoffrey Simpson)

London, June 27.
Whatever hope remained that Jack Petersen would meet the new world heavy-weight champion, James J. Braddock, before the year was out vanished into the rain-drenched air at Wembley on Tuesday night.

His second defeat by Walter Neusel was a cruel blow, and even "Pa" Petersen, the supreme optimist where his son is concerned, seems to appreciate that the main chance of world title status now lies in the cruiser-weight division, in which the limit is 12st. 7lb.

The physical handicap under which Petersen has laboured in all his heavy-weight ventures was never made more plain than against Neusel. He was beaten by the German's strength and size as much as anything.

WILL DO HIM GOOD
When he is 25—two years hence—Petersen may have filled out sufficiently to mingle with the world's big men with an even chance. "Pa" declares that it is characteristic of the family for the male members to reach maturity at that age.

In the meantime, it will probably do Petersen a world of good to meet men of his own physique. His weight on Tuesday was 12st. 9lb. He could easily scale 2lb. less.

The Wembley promoters, encouraged by the big attendance at the fight on such a wet night, are convinced that thousands would flock to see Petersen battling it out with Bob Olin, the New York holder of the cruiser-weight championship.

Of course, they are right. In spite of defeat, Petersen remains the biggest attraction in British boxing. So it is to be hoped Olin will be tempted to accept the attractive offer, about to be cabled to him.

Wembley aim to present the bout in early September, which would be an ideal time, escaping the main holiday season and at the same time giving Petersen a chance to get his damaged eye strong again.

Neusel, as expected, is negotiating for a match with Braddock, whom he might beat, but his chance of getting it is so remote that it need not be seriously discussed.

The rise of Joe Louis, sensational Detroit Negro, and his smashing win over the colossal Carnera have turned the heavy-weight situation completely round. As I see it, Louis is going to be a greater attraction than Baer ever was.

EVERYTHING
He seems to have everything—boxing ability, fighting fire, terrific hitting, defence, pluck, and staying power. He is being called a coloured Dempsey and a Jack Johnson.

The move now will be to match Louis with Baer in an eliminator in the autumn—and what a fight that will be! If that does not restore the million-dollar gate to boxing nothing will. The winner will then face Braddock in the following summer for the title.

HELEN JACOBS IN A HURRY

(By Stanley N. Doust)

London, June 26.
The terrific thunderstorm that broke at Wimbledon yesterday held up play in the Lawn Tennis Championships till nearly four o'clock.

The courts were flooded, and after the rain ceased only the five courts which were protected by tarpaulin covers were playable. The matches on all the other courts had to be cancelled.

Yesterday the women began their singles. Mrs. Moody, Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Spelling, and Miss Dorothy Round won their respective matches.

Miss Helen Jacobs played and beat Miss N. Adamson, the Belgian champion, on Court No. 1, by 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Jacobs was in a hurry. She was to be presented at Court, and although her match was scheduled to follow Mrs. Spelling v. Miss Beazley, owing to the delay caused by the storm, it was put forward.

During the winter months, which she spent in England, she has worked hard to acquire a flat forehead drive as a variation to her cut shots.

So confident was she yesterday that she never played any shot on her forehead but this new stroke. In consequence there was much more speed in her game even if there was more risk.

Miss Adamson, however, put up a very good fight. Left-handed, she hit the ball well and generally was versatile, and held Miss Jacobs in the first set to three games all.

Miss Round won by 6-6, 6-3 in a match disturbed by the rain. Miss McOstrich began brilliantly, and led by 4-2 in the first set. Then the champion improved as she got back to her rhythm, and some of her cross-court back-hand drives had Miss McOstrich groping for the ball yards outside the court.

Miss Round levelled at 4-4, but she could not stabilise her game, and Miss McOstrich led by 6-5. From this point onwards it was a contest between the unequal brilliance of Miss Round and the plodding steadiness of Miss McOstrich.

A beautiful stop-volley by Miss Round, and then a drop-shot, gave her a temporary advantage which she immediately threw away by a simple error.

She was, in other words, inconsistent, but just had sufficient in hand to gain the first set.

F. A. SCHEME AT CHELSEA

At last football is to have something really new.

The Football Association have decided to father the scheme of Mr. Stanley Rous, the secretary, to start a summer school for coaches and trainers, and it was to be held at the Duke of York's headquarters, Chelsea, on four days beginning July 15.

There has been an encouraging response. About forty trainers and coaches, who were engaged under the F.A.'s schools' scheme last season, were to attend.

Greatly daring, Mr. Rous launched his plan at the dinner of the Secretaries' and Managers' Association, and created astonishment by suggesting that even the training methods of the professional clubs might be improved.

He indicated that it was a field which had been inadequately explored, and told how new ideas might be introduced to drive away the monotony of the day-to-day lapping and sprinting from which the players suffer.

Mr. Rous has been a keen student of physical culture, and he is convinced that the methods employed in this country lag far behind those used in other countries.

SPECIAL LECTURES
As a matter of fact the footballer to-day trains in the same way as did the player of 30 years ago.

The clubs will have to make a change; they have all changes even when it means remaining out-of-date—but the course which Mr. Rous has arranged will it is believed prove the benefits to be derived by the new and enlightened methods which are to be practised.

In addition to training Mr. S. Williams, of the Carnegie Physical Training College, was to lecture on gymnastics and general athletic activities, and Mr. E. Major, the principal of the Carnegie College, was to deal with the theory and practice of teaching and with elementary psychology.

Football technique and tactics were to be explained by the Rev. K. R. G. Hunt, Mr. Norman Creek, and Mr. James Hogan, and a doctor was to advise on the treatment of minor ailments and injuries.

WALKING RECORD ESTABLISHED

TWO MILES TIME

London, July 21.

Cooper, the amateur two-mile champion walker, broke the record for the distance to-day when he beat the previous best time registered by G. Rasmussen.

Cooper covered the two miles in 12 mins. 38.1/5 secs., beating the time of 12 mins. 53.3/5 secs. made by Rasmussen, of Denmark, in July 1918, and also the time of 12 mins. 44.4/5 secs. made by the Canadian, Klennan, which, however, has not yet been officially passed.—Reuter.

According to the World Almanac Rasmussen's time of 12 mins. 3/5 secs. was for 3,000 metres which is not quite two miles while the record for the two miles is held by G. E. Larnier, of Great Britain, who covered the distance in England in July 1904, in 13 mins. 11.4 secs.

down some dangerous shots which enabled the opposition to improve their position. Marquess was the worst of the Craigenower players but he occasionally rendered valuable assistance to the rink.

After an indifferent opening F. X. M. da Silva played some brilliant woods and was by far the most consistent player for the winners. He saved many a difficult situation and frequently trailed the jack or drew perfect shots dead on the jack. His opposite number, Harold Beer, was giving but a mediocre display and showed little of his capabilities.

C. G. Silva was not as successful as normally with his driving been more accurate. He would have several big counts as the Craigenower four showed a decided reluctance, or inability, to send down back woods, with the exception of the first head on which the Craigenower four lay three when C. G. Silva carried the jack in an attempt to rest a touch by Bradbury.

A FOUR CONCEDED

The Craigenower's failure to have back woods was early evident for they conceded a four on the second head when C. G. Silva again trailed the jack with his last wood after Omar lay the shot by knocking the jack from Craigenower woods when the Portuguese were lying three.

A single on the third head gave the Craigenower players the lead by 5-3, but when Omar knocked the jack to a cluster of Craigenower woods the Happy Valley side scored their second three to make the score 6-5. When the Craigenower side lay two on the eighth head F. X. M. da Silva carried the jack into the ditch to lay the shot. Omar, with his first wood, sent a touch into the ditch but was just beaten for the shot.

The Craigenower were lying four shots on the ninth head when Omar went to bowl and with his last wood he saved three, but during that time 8-8. After 10-10 was called at the end of the 13th head the Club de Craigenower players scored a two and led at 12-10, but a single and a two gave the Craigenower C. C. the lead at 13-12. On the 15th head Omar had carried the jack into the ditch to lay the shot.

THE FATAL THIRTEEN

However, the losers remained on the fatal 13 for the remainder of the game, during which time the Club de Craigenower rink registered three singles, a two and a single on the last head to win by 18-13.

The sixteenth head saw some fine bowling by the later players of the two sides. When the Craigenower C. C. were lying three F. X. M. da Silva carried the jack among a cluster of Craigenower back woods and lay four shots which seemed perfectly safe until Omar, with a heavy delivery bumped a front wood on to the jack, which struck the Craigenower back woods and ricocheted to a Craigenower wood on the side of the Craigenower bunch.

RESULTS OF U.S. FINALS

LAWN TENNIS CONTESTS

New York, July 19.
At Forest Hills to-day, Edgar Weller, of Texas, won the Eastern Junior Singles Tennis Championship by defeating David Carson, of New York, by 6-1, 6-2, 6-3 in the final.

At Forest Hills, New Jersey, and Alfred Jarvis, also of New Jersey, defeated Charles J. Mantan, of Forest Hills, and Wesley Ganett, of New Orleans, to capture the Junior Doubles title. The score was 6-3, 6-0, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.—United Press.

GREAT BRITAIN BEATEN

London, July 20.
Australia have obtained a winning lead of three matches to one in the tennis match being played between Britain and Australia at Eastbourne.

Lending by two matches to one after the doubles, Australia scored another victory when Jack Crawford defeated Bunny Austin in four sets, winning by 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

The Australian was in his best form and had no difficulty in beating Austin. The match was featured by many long rallies and some unplayable cross-court drives by Crawford.

In the fifth match, between McGrath and Fred Perry, McGrath won the first set at 6-2 and Perry the second with the same score. Rain then came down and the match was abandoned.

AMERICA TAKES LEAD

DONALD BUDGE WINS

London, July 20.
The United States is leading Germany by a match to nil in the final round of the Davis Cup competition, which is being played at Wimbledon.

Donald Budge beat Henkel after four strenuous sets, 7-5, 11-9, 6-8, 6-1. Rain caused the postponement of the match between Wimmer Allison (U.S.) and Gottfried von Cramm, which was also scheduled to be played to-day.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed when it was decided not to play this match.

Thousands of spectators became annoyed and threw cushions on the court, some of them hitting the line-men's heads.

Beer bottles also were thrown into the court and broke into pieces on the turf.

The storm of cushions continued for ten minutes until policemen came on the court, and the spectators desisted for want of more ammunition.

It was announced later that the Allison-von Cramm match will be played on Monday, the doubles on Tuesday and the remaining singles on Wednesday.

BUDGE NOT AT BEST

Henkel fully extended Budge in the first three sets of their encounter, but though he won the third, he could only obtain one game in the fourth, which was finished in twelve minutes. The scores were 7-5, 11-9, 6-8 and 6-1 in favour of Budge.

It was a match of streaks and patches, with the American scoring the anticipated victory. Budge, however, fell, until the fourth electrifying set, which was over in twelve minutes, to reveal the controlled speed which took him into the semi-finals of the Wimbledon championships.

Both youngsters seemed to sense the importance of the match and seemed nervous.

Budge made lots of spectacular volleys, but he also made lances of poor shots, which were lacking in control and length, and quite unworthy of the occasion.

Henkel fought doggedly from the base line, relying wholly on retrieving the American's wide-flung drives to the corners, and scoring on Budge's mistakes.

The German was inclined to be lacking in initiative and allowed Budge to dictate the terms of the fight.

Both produced stylish drives and well-balanced serving, and both showed a preference for the back-hand.

MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS

Kowloon C. C. Teams To Meet To-day

Only one match is being played in the Mixed Doubles Lawn Tennis League to-day, that between the two Kowloon Cricket Club teams.

The officially revised fixtures were to have come into force to-day but the U. S. R. C., who were to have met the Kowloon C. C. "A" cannot raise a team and the match has been further postponed to allow the Kowloon C. C. to adhere to their original fixture which was privately arranged, sometime ago.

London, July 20.
It is announced in Swansea that Sir William Firth, a leading employer, has offered £25,000 towards a scheme to improve the health of the ship-building industry. Employers generally have offered another £25,000 and it was stated that workmen were willing to give two and half per cent. of their wages.—British Wireless.

How Helen Jacobs Trained For Wimbledon

American athletes are brought up to a knowledge of methodical training. From high school days, through college, the members of teams are subjected to strict rules of diet, and exercise, and to the regulation of their hours of sleep. This disciplined physical culture has meant a great deal to American tennis. All of our best players, both men and women, are acquainted with it, and to very few of them is it a burden to observe the rules of training when they are preparing for tournament tennis.

I have always felt that it is necessary to modify training for tennis. The game is not a team sport; it is played all the year round, reaching its climax in the summer months. Herein it differs from team sports which have a definite season, up to which time strict training must be observed, but after which time the players can do as they like. A broad generalization proves that if the players trained before their matches they would be obliged to train all the year.

Take, as an example, Fred Perry's last tennis year. He started play in the British Harcourt Championships at Bournemouth. After this tournament, which he won, he went to Paris to play in the French Championships. Next came Wimbledon and the Davis Cup matches, after which he sailed for the United States to play in our National singles, doubles, and mixed doubles events. With the termination of these tournaments, and after having won the singles title, he went to California, playing several exhibition matches en route.

He competed successfully in the Pacific South-west Championship at Los Angeles; then, after a brief respite, he sailed for Australia, where he played during most of the winter. His season this year appears to be planned along similar lines.

If, under these conditions, Fred Perry were to inflict upon himself strict training at all times, he would undoubtedly become too stale to play as he does throughout the year.

My own rules of training are quite simple. I too have undergone the regime of training in high school. My activities in the swimming team at school coincided with my first attempts at serious tennis. My adherence to the training rules was voluntary because I thought it wise to follow these rules in preparing myself for the tennis season.

I took a supervised luncheon at school, ate no sweets between meals, and went to bed at near nine-thirty as possible. This went on for four years, but during that time I built up the health, the endurance, and the eye-sight that have stood me in good stead for eleven years of strenuous competitive tennis.

Now my rule is somewhat altered. Having lost, to some extent, my taste for sweets, it is no longer unpleasant to forgo them, and this has enabled me to lose much of the weight that two years ago was a serious threat to my endurance.

My diet has no punishment to me to eat the things so disagreeably labeled "wholesome." In perfect candour, however, I must admit one exception. Several years ago I decided upon a luncheon diet which I considered ideal during the tennis season. The menu was simple—lamb chops, tomato, and toast.

For several years I fancied that I played better tennis after this interesting luncheon than I did when I enjoyed a more palatable meal. In this respect I was decidedly hard on myself, for I have allowed the lamb chops and toast to become a pre-match ritual. Toward the end of a tournament I never see this combination placed before me without experiencing infinite loathing. Fortunately my appetite always wanes during match-play, and I still feel that if I eat anything this dull luncheon is the most sensible.

To one rule I have always adhered strictly and willingly—that of ten hours' sleep during tournaments. It is as necessary for me to sleep ten to twelve hours as it is for me to practice my shots. I have known players who could produce their best games with not more than seven or eight hours' sleep, and in some exceptional cases, with not more than five hours' sleep, but they are, I believe, in the minority.

I have found that I require no other physical training than tennis to keep fit for tournaments. Tennis embraces nearly all the callisthenic exercises, one stretches, one bends forward, side ways, backwards—one stretches, in fact, in almost every direction, and in

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The declarer in to-day's hand gets a bad break in one suit but does not become discouraged, and by clever play still succeeds in making game.

NORTH
S—A-8-5
H—K-9-6-4
D—8-6-3
C—K-Q-2
WEST
S—7-4-3
H—Q-10-5
D—K-10-4
C—J-9
EAST
S—Q-J-6
H—8-7
D—Q-9
C—10-8-6-4
SOUTH—DEALER
S—K-10-2
H—A-3-2
D—A-7-6
C—A-7-5-3

The Bidding.

At auction South, the dealer, would buy the contract for one no trump, while, at contract North would take partner's one no trump to three no trump.

The Play

As diamonds, West's longest and strongest suit, is headed by the king, jack, ten, he leads the jack from this combination; dummy plays the three. East knows that when the jack is led against a no trump declaration it is either led from the ace, jack, ten, the king, jack, ten or the jack, nine. As East holds the nine, he correctly assumes that the lead is from the ace, jack, ten or king, jack, ten and covers with the queen in order to unblock the suit.

Declarer plays small. East returns the nine of diamonds. There is no advantage in the declarer's holding off because if the opening leader only held four diamonds originally, the most the opposition can make is three diamonds and a heart trick, and if the diamonds are split five-two, it may work out to the declarer's disadvantage to hold off, so the trick is taken with the ace, West playing the four.

The declarer, hoping for a club split, leads a small club to the dummy's king, returns the queen and then the deuce, overtaking in his own hand with the ace, West showing out and discarding a small spade. The declarer's hopes for game are now dwindling. If he plays the deuce of hearts and West would play small, he would go up with the nine and throw East in the lead with the jack.

East could then cash his good ten of clubs, but would be forced to lead to declarer's hearts or spades.
West could easily defeat this line of offence, though, by playing the ten of hearts, which would force the dummy's king and all declarer could do then would be to cash his two good spades and his heart, which would only give him two odd.

His best plan is to try and make one of the opponents squeeze the other. He therefore returns the opponents' suit by leading the seven of diamonds, West wins with the ten, dummy plays the eight and East discards the six of spades.
West cashes his king and deuce of diamonds, dummy discarding the four and six of hearts. East must hold his good ten of clubs and decides to protect the spade suit, discarding the seven and eight of hearts. Regardless of what West leads now, East will be squeezed.

If West leads the seven of spades,
declarer will win with the king,
lead a small heart to dummy's king, return a heart to his own ace and East will be forced to discard either a spade or a club. If a heart is led by West, dummy will win with the king, return a heart to declarer's ace and again East will be forced to discard a spade, which will make all of the declarer's spades good.

Among recent appointments and promotions announced by the Colonial Office are the following—First Appointment—Miss N. K. Johnson, to be Nursing Sister, Hongkong; Administrative Service—B. Hamilton (Cadet Officer, Class II Hongkong) to be Cadet Officer, Class I.

The President and a small party motored to Annapolis, Maryland, last night to board the yacht. The week-end cruise, it was indicated, will be devoid of political conferences, but if Mr. Roosevelt desires to discuss the legal aspects of the New Deal, now under attack in courts throughout the country, the Attorney General, Mr. Homer S.
Cummings, will be included in the party.—United Press.

SALE OF GIRL PLANNED

MAN AND WOMAN SENTENCED

Pleading guilty to charges of procuring and having taken part in a transaction regarding a 16-year-old girl named Lam Shum, Ko Shing-min, 22, unemployed, was sentenced by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, to six months' hard labour, while Cho Luk, 36, married woman, was sentenced to 12 months. The second defendant had against her a previous conviction for a similar offence.

Inspector Andrews, of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, stated that the girl's mother was dead and her father was in the country.
The girl came to Hongkong some four years ago and had been working here. On July 5 she came into contact with the first accused who offered to take her to Annam where he would marry her, and she could become a prostitute. It was agreed that he would sell the girl for $350, but part of this money would be retained by him to redeem some property he had in Canton.

First defendant was later introduced to second defendant and the girl was taken to a house in Haitan Street to see a prospective buyer. Later on the same day $5 was paid and $5 was given to first defendant as "bargain money."

On the morning of the 19th the girl was found at first defendant's address and she told the police that she was to have sailed for Annam with first defendant today. The girl stated that she was willing to be a prostitute.
